Lost

I am one in a crowd of millions.
They surround me,
They close me in.
I can neither breathe,
Nor grow.
I am alone.
People are around me,
But I am alone.
No one understands me.
I cannot communicate.
I am stereotyped and classified.
I am a member of a group.
No! I am myself.
I have ideas and opinions
But they are "childish."
I do something foolish;
I am old enough to know better.
I am lost.
Stranded between childhood and maturity,
Floating around in a state of limbo
As a lost soul trying to find rest,
I strive to discover myself
And make myself known to others.
I am bewildered and confused.
I am a teenager.

YOUTH

A time.
With places.
To see, hear, touch, and smell.
A precious state of learning.
A short period of play, laughter.
Of growing.
A time of helping and seeking help.
Of loving.
A time of intolerance, quarreling.
Of deep thoughts.
Who am I?
What am I?
Of deciding.
A small play in which others play the most Important roles.
A transparent dream, when the joy of seeing the next
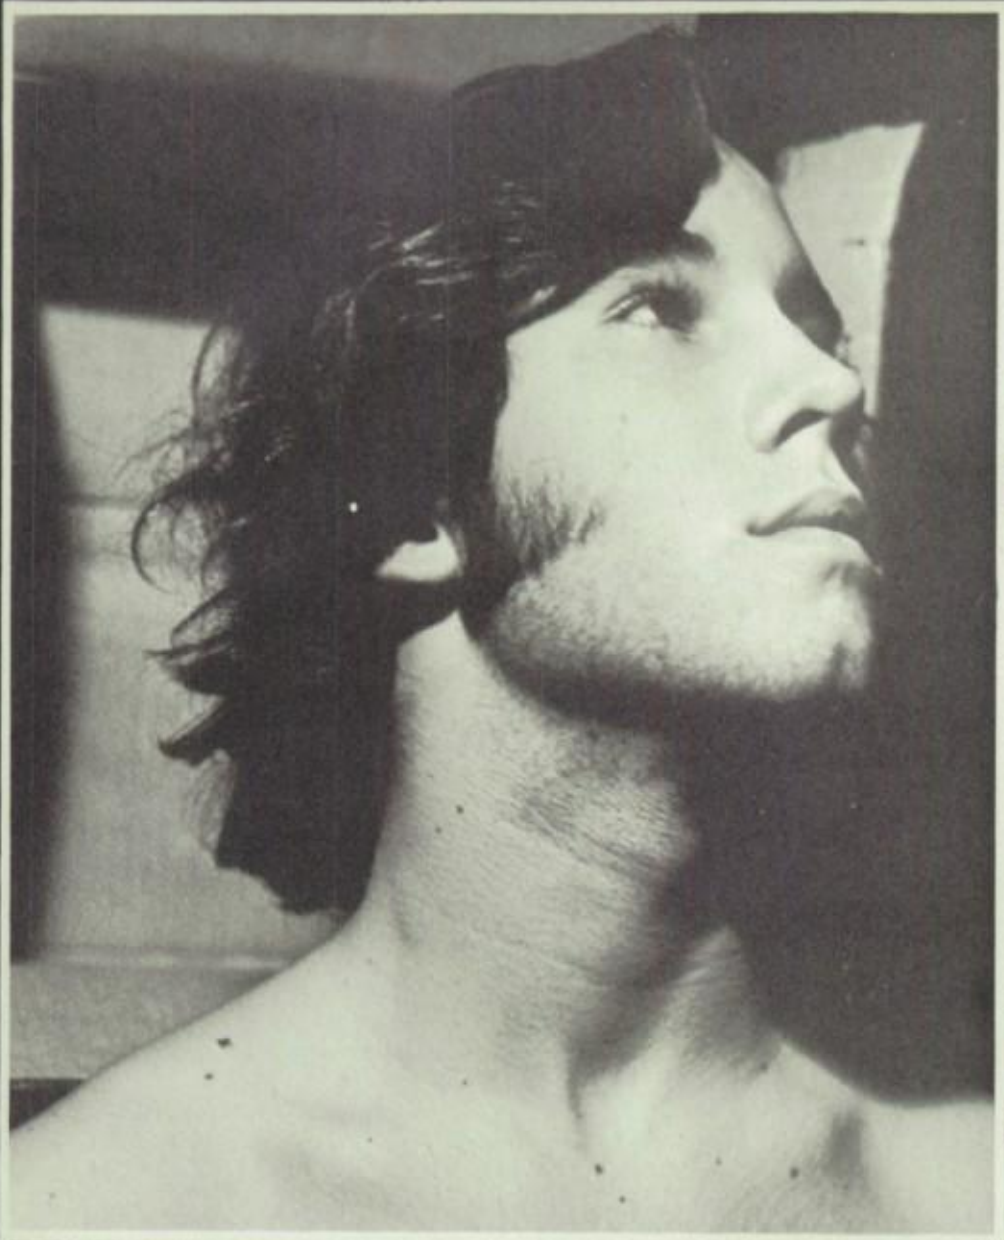
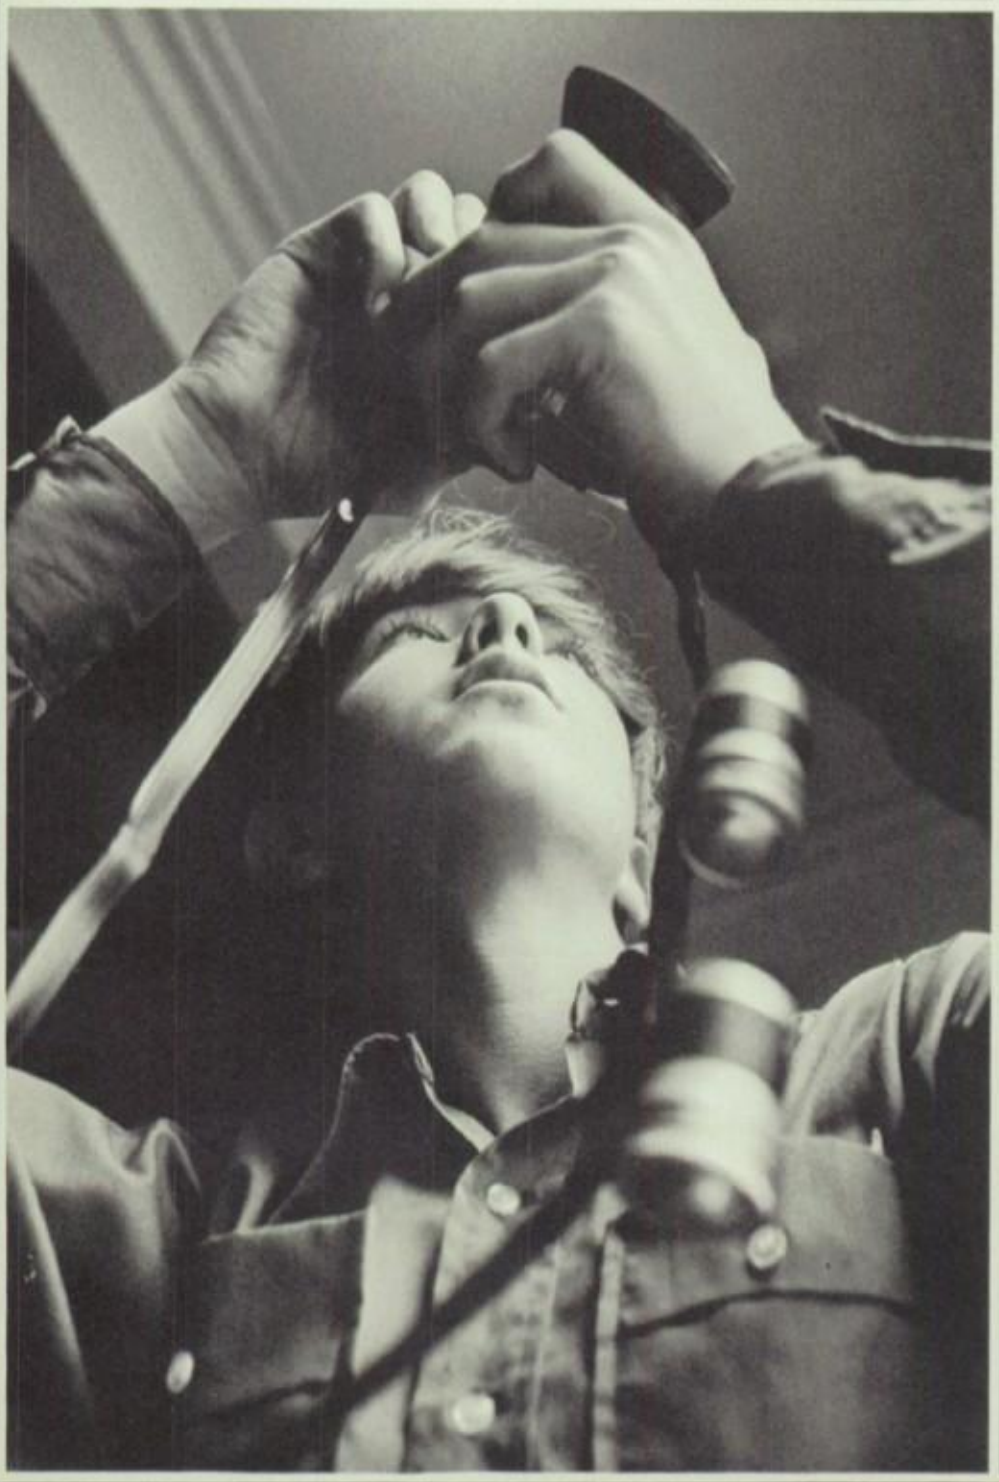
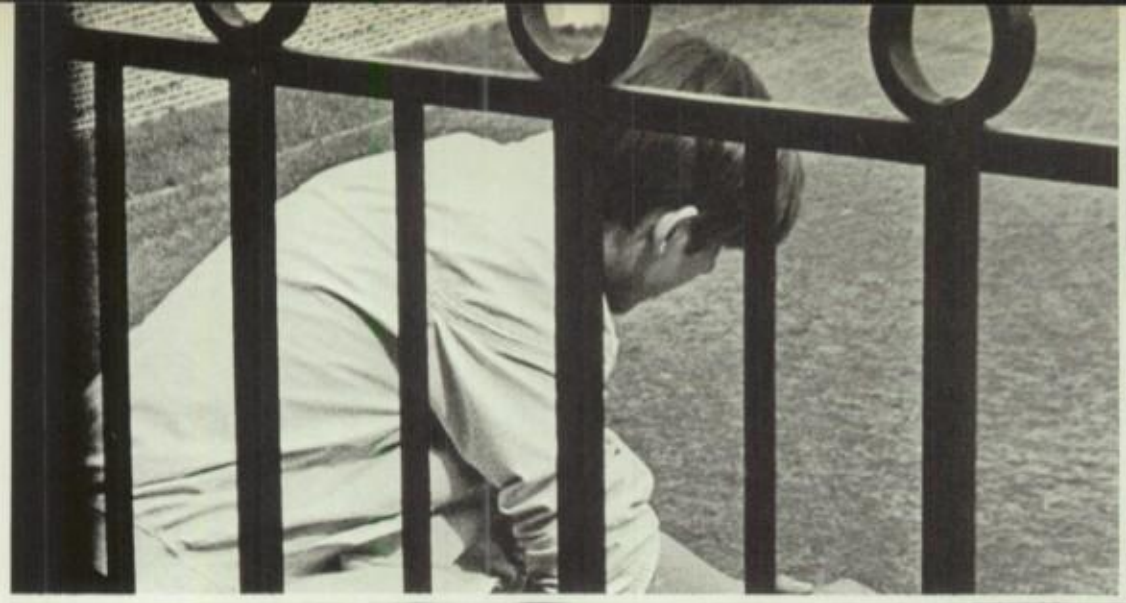
Day, is worth life itself.
A time.

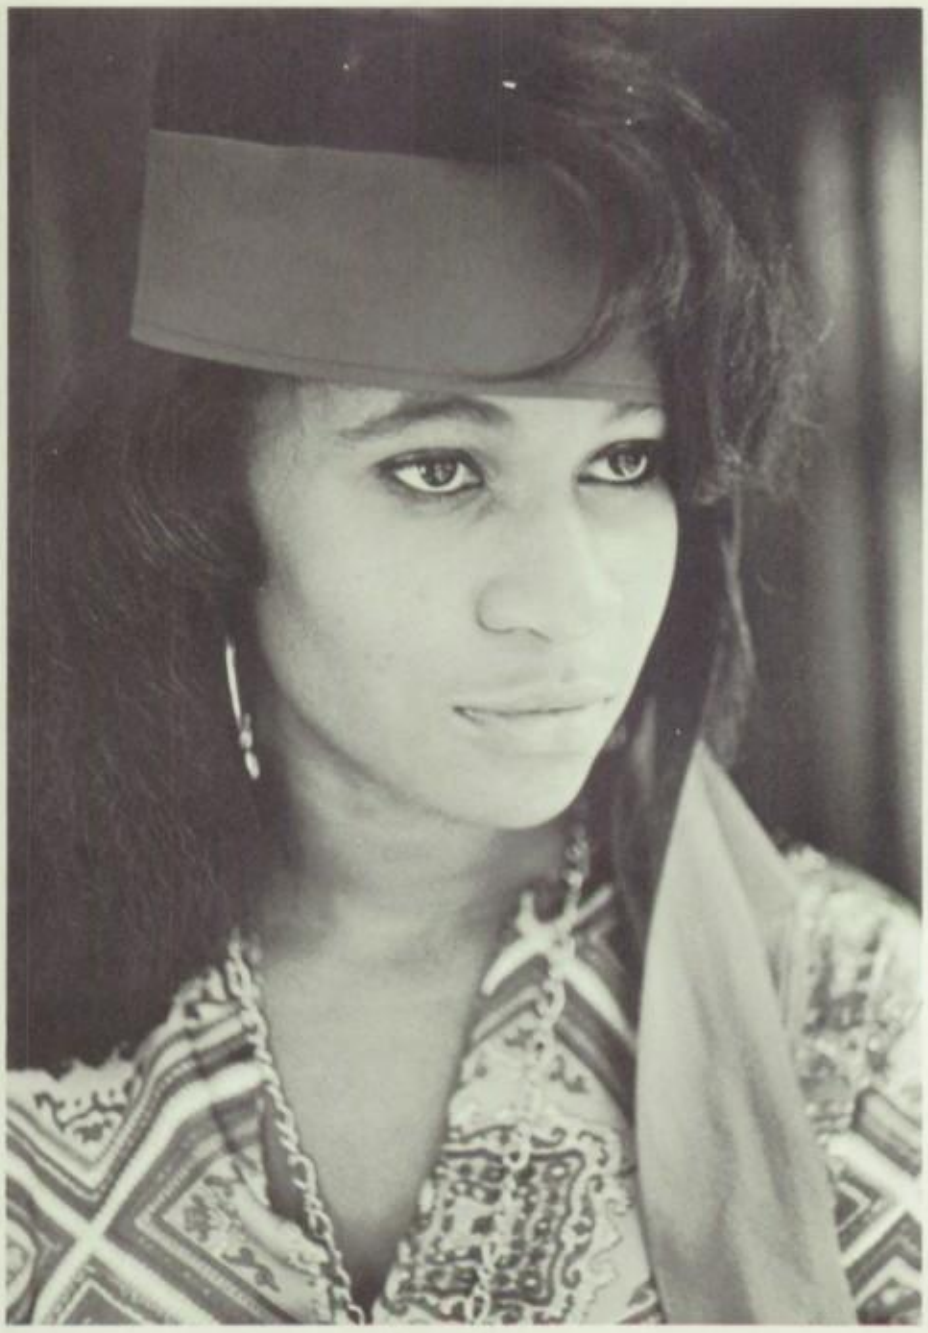
Phillip Buscema





Who Can Dream . . . Who Can Write . . . Who Can Be . . . Better Than We





When I come home late,
No one waits up for me.
They don't leave the lights on.
But the door's never locked,
And even though they aren't there
To say it, I am welcome home.

But I am growing older,
And outgrowing my childhood home.
(Strange, to outgrow your family.)
One day I will walk out
Into the night again, and leave
My silent home with all its Silent love locked up inside.

And I will know if I return,
I will find the door locked—
Not against me, but against
Whatever people in the suburbs
Are afraid of, But those locks,
They will keep me out, too,
Just the same.

Ellen Hodge

HESITATIONS

As I watch the leaves
Turn to an autumn flower garden,
I wonder where I will be
This time next year.
Before this time, I had no reason
To wonder.
I would always come back to the same
Old school
And the same Old friends.
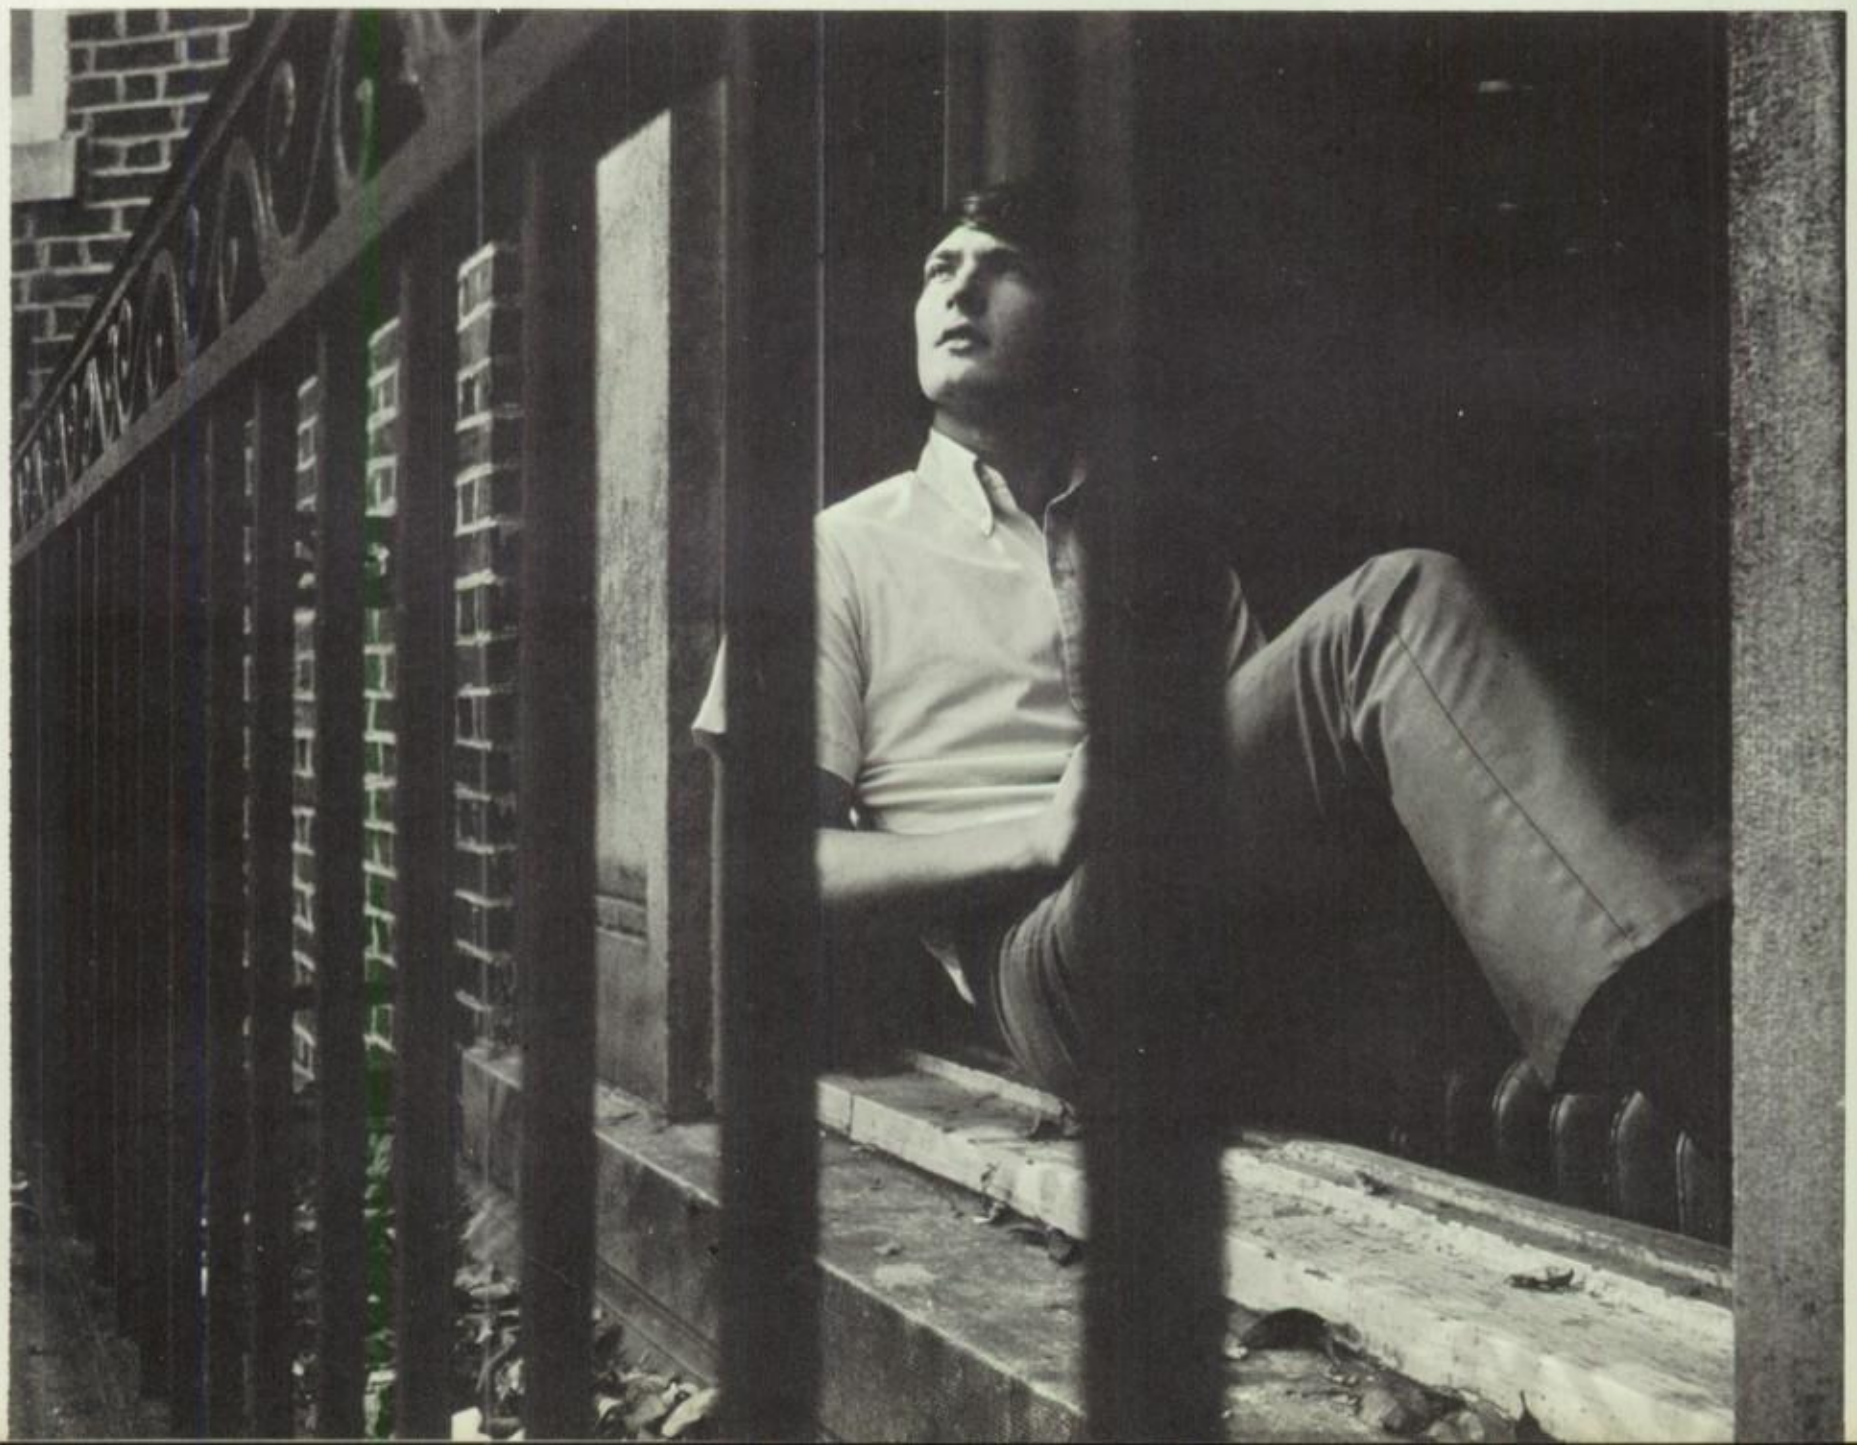
But now as I realize that there will be
No next time,
I hesitate
To let the tomorrows take the place
Of yesterdays.
Hesitations—
They are here to replace the sure-footed path
I must leave behind.

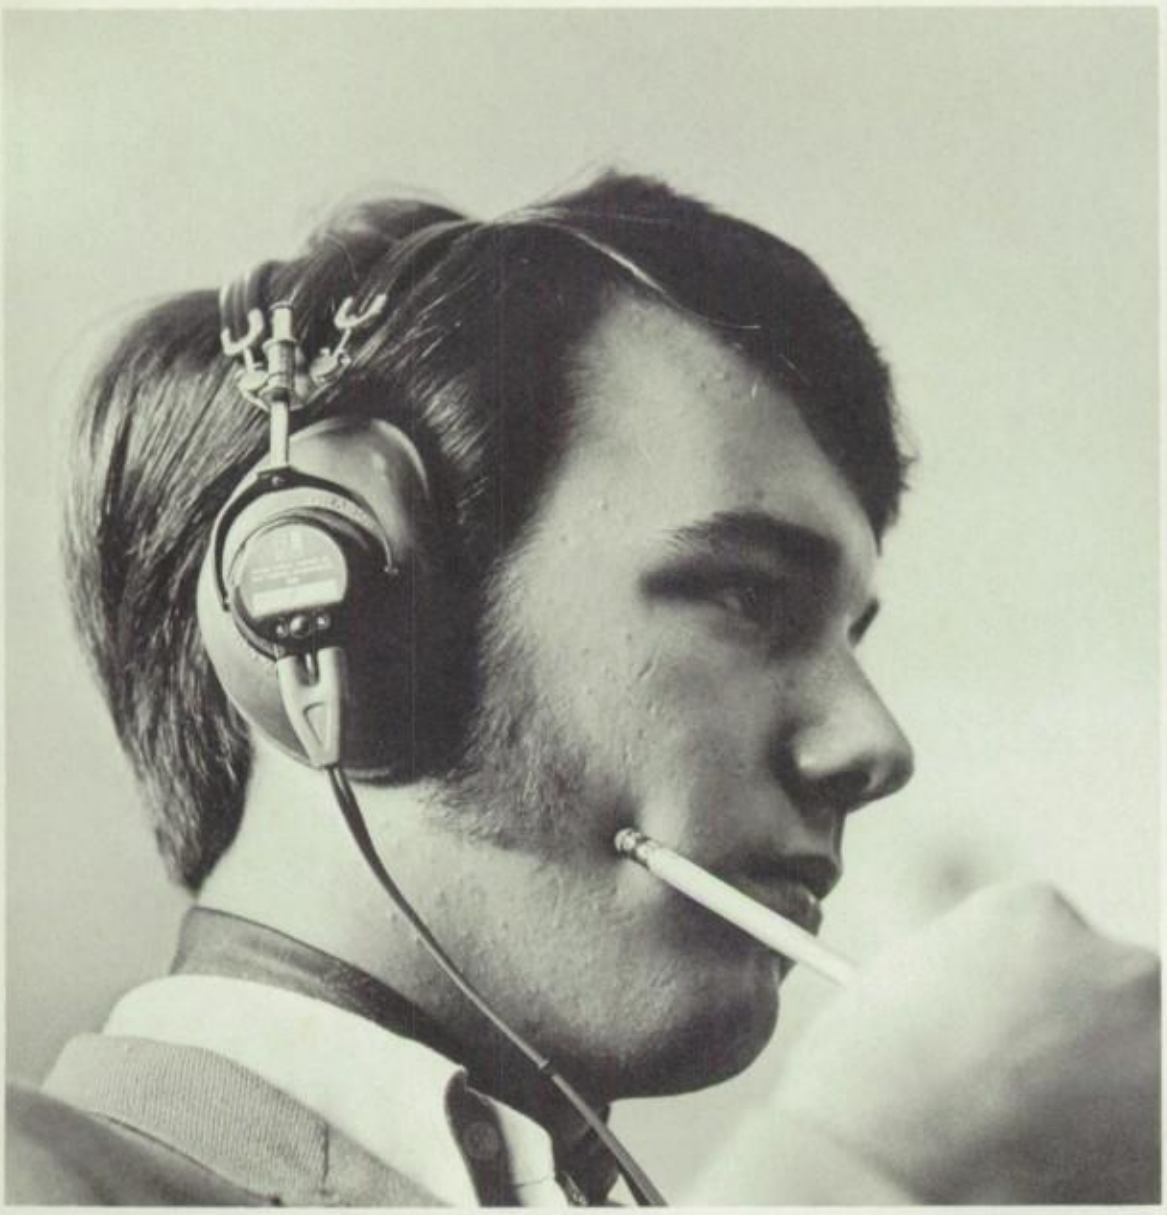
Sharon Davidson

PHYLLIS

Young and fresh.
Sensitive to life itself, like a baby who
Is discovering it's surroundings.
Yet so unaware.
Soft.
Devils play on the surface,
Which hides the gentleness that's inside.
A gentleness that is rarely released,
Except when met with gentleness itself.
A flower or a tender kiss.
She takes hurting matters at heart,
And exults at the slightest joy.
Beautiful.
Laughing, crying.
A woman.
Intolerant at herself.
She pictures others as herself.
But she knows everyone is different.
She approaches with shyness,
and leaves with a warm smile.
Trustful.
To her truth is love.
To me she is the same.

Phillip Buscema





Who am I?
But a man in a forest.
Look!
This forest is of men,
All different,
None with meaning or faces.

Look again!
You are in a maze:
Concrete walls, distorted noises.
It all seems so rushed.
You think! This is a city?

Why are we so civilized—
And yet, still in a jungle?
And all is strange.
Is this our great human race?

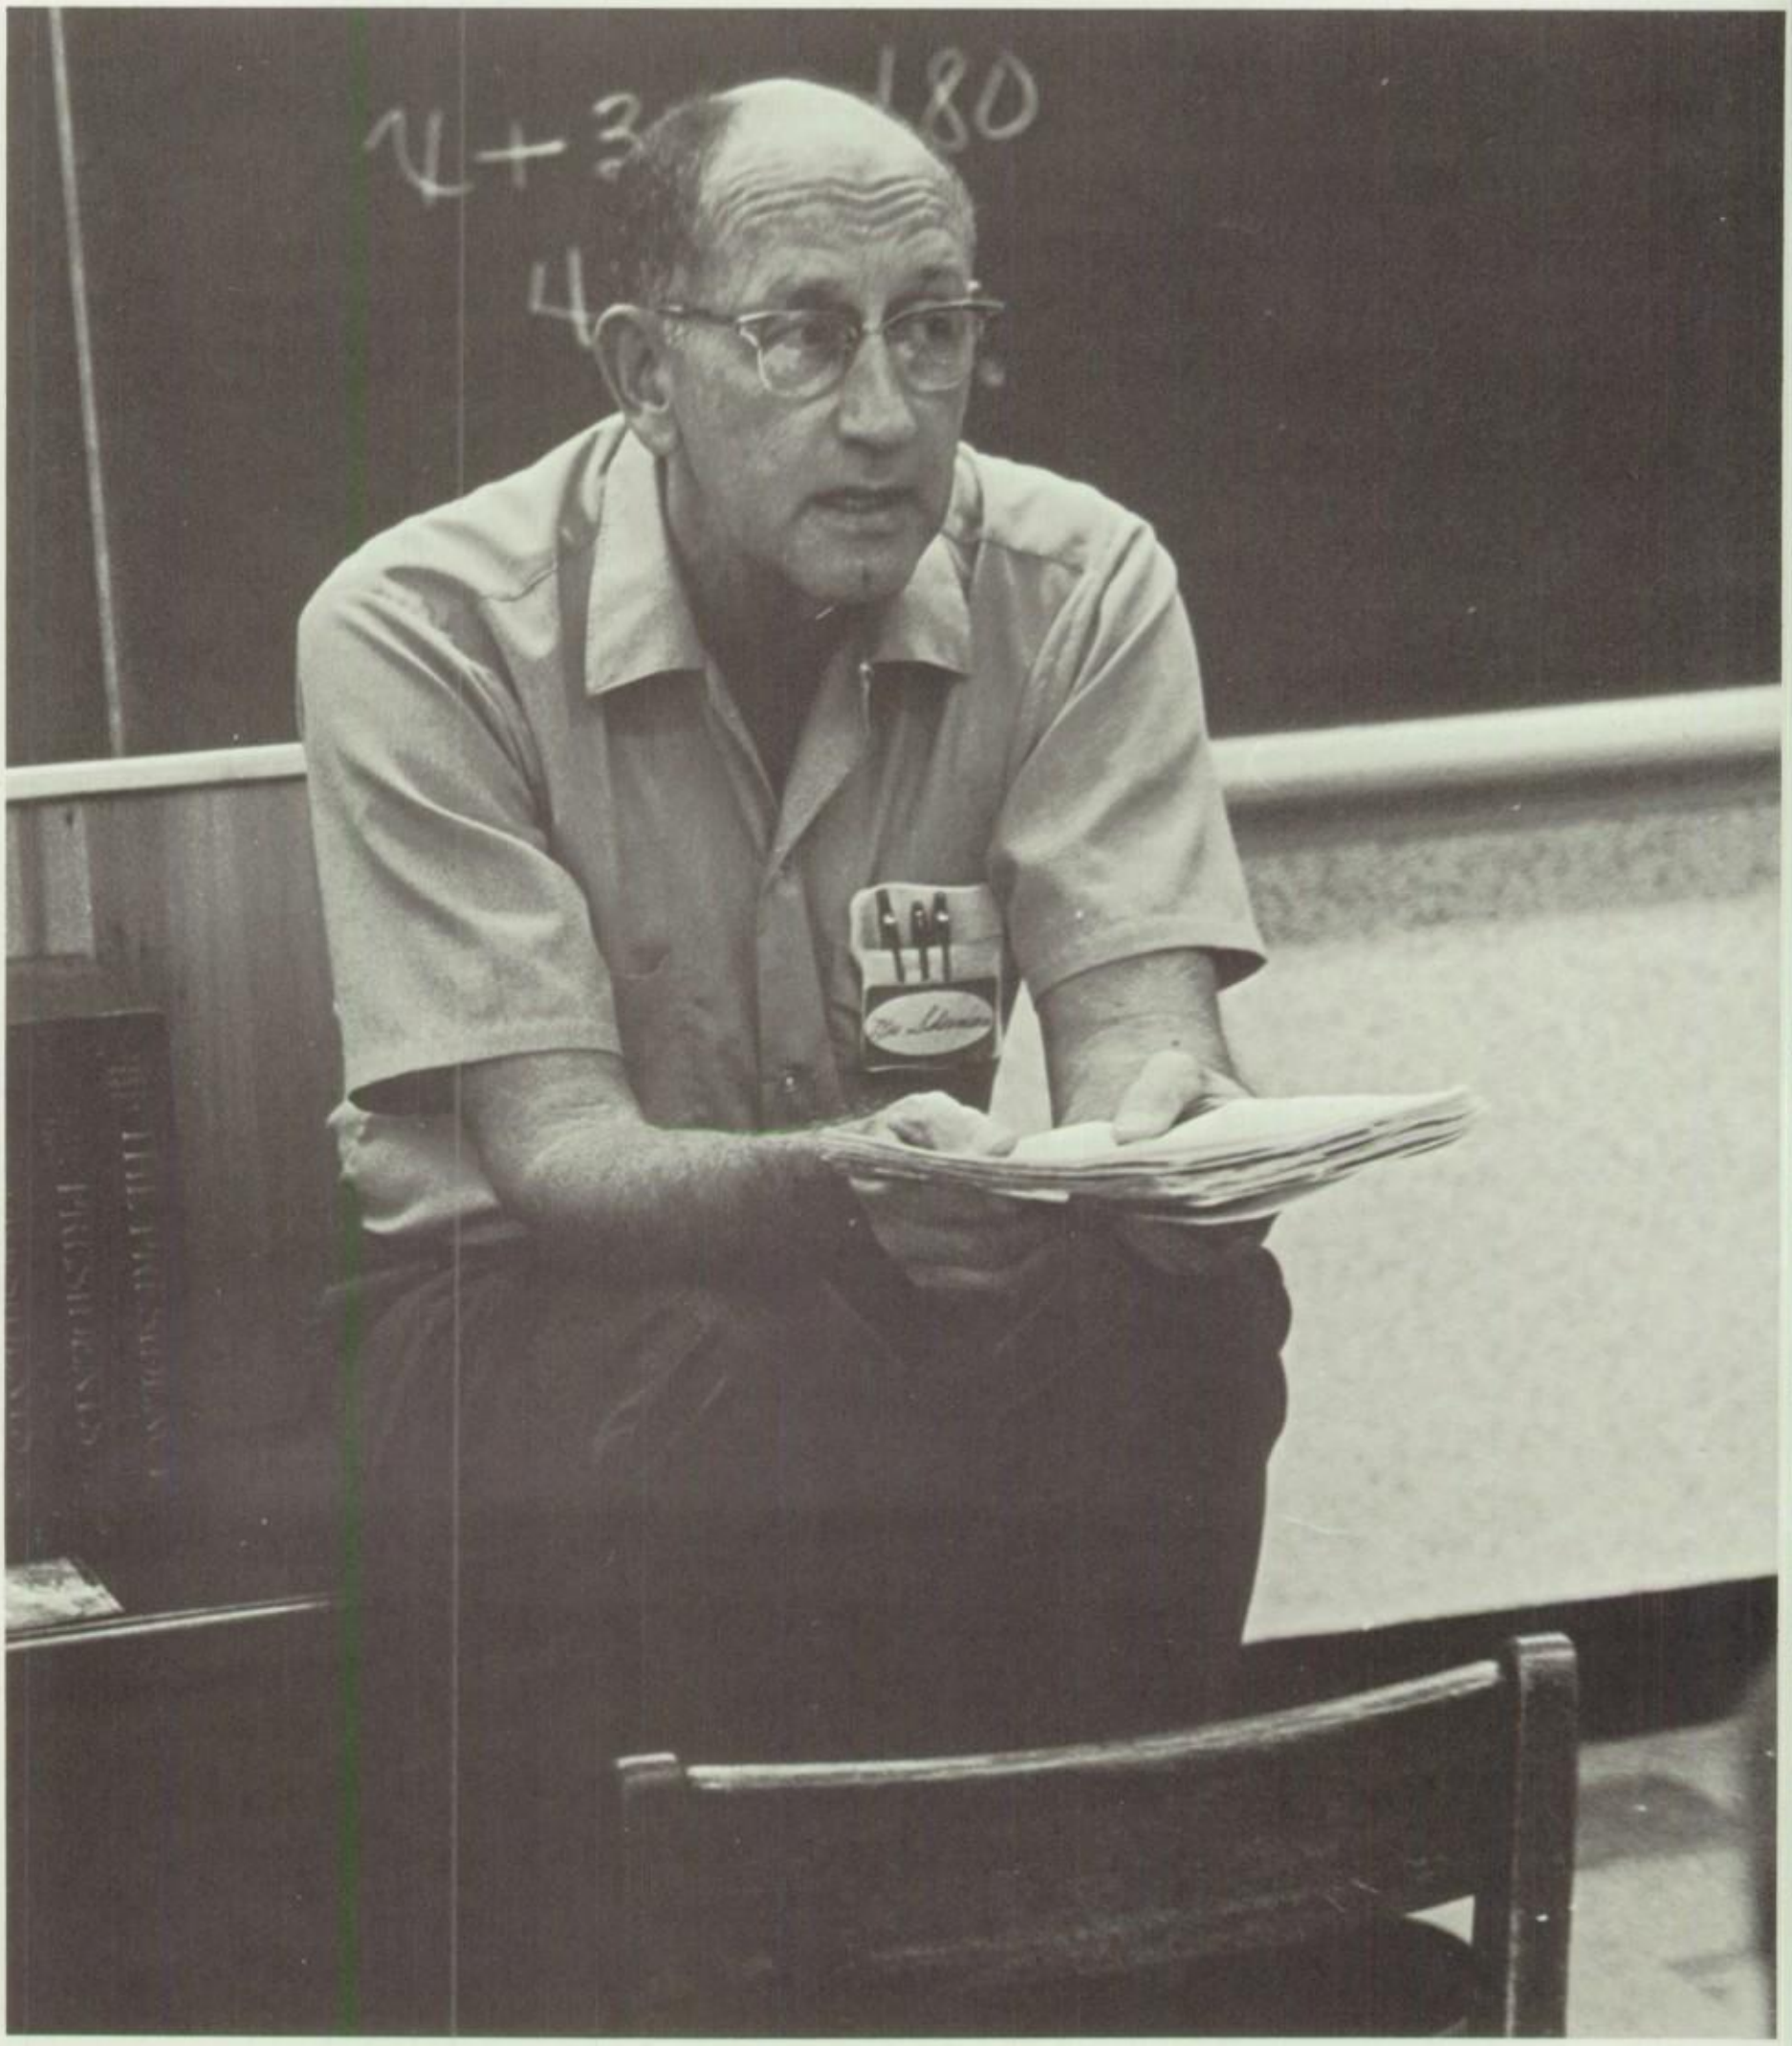
"SHERM"



Alumnus Stan Matlock returned to write this tribute to Mr. Sherman.

Tribute to a Great Teacher

Mr. Sherman,

. . . This Book Is Yours

If you have had a course in history under Mr. Harold Sherman you are, indeed fortunate. I say this because he ranks in my mind — after, lo, these many years — as one of the truly memorable teachers I ever had. Under his tutelage and with his guidance and facility, historical figures became people, not just names. With his capacity to inject anecdotal material, history simply came alive. Mr. Sherman has the beautiful knack of combining the scholarly and the contemporary approach. While we learned a lot of solid history because of him, he always managed to keep the events of the past related to the present, and thus infinitely more meaningful. He made it fun to think. He challenged, he amused, he questioned, he related. He was one of the handful of unforgettable teachers I had in my years of formal education; in his chosen field, he was the most inspiring of all. Sad it is to think that students henceforth will be denied the challenge of his classroom, but it is also happy to reflect upon how many young people he has inspired over these many years. I speak for thousands when I say, "Thank you, sir."

Stan Matlock

Former years saw "Sherm" caring for the tennis courts.

Congressman Sherer's office opened to Mr. Sherman and the "dizzy eight."

SPORT

SPORTS

Cold nights in the stadium watching the football team started another year of sports. Students, all huddled together, wrapped in blankets, often talked about other sports. The wrestling team and its victories were major parts of conversations among the guys. Recalling practices of pin-downs caused red faces and heads thrown back in laughter. Cross country and swimming team members whispered nervously about meets. Knocked down hurdles and scraped up knees were all a part of their practices. Nights of yelling and hoarseness belonged to the basketball games. Cheering for that special guy or the whole team proved the best time students experienced.

Dedicated practice in all sports resulted in tournament matches.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Sweat socks, bloomers and "just so you're there when they take attendance" gave way to a new perspective of physical education. Concentration on individual sports that can be used more than two and a half periods a week, Miss Leslie, Mrs. DeLyons and Miss Robbins worked to make gym relevant to civilian life. After learning the basics of gymnastics, girls practiced stunts on the balance beam and uneven parallel bars. Discriminating girls' rules for basketball gave way to the regular boys' rules. Members of GAA traveled to neighborhood bowling lanes as gutter balls surrendered to strikes. More experienced swimmers gave pointers to beginners in the pool.

GAA offered girls a wide variety of activities.

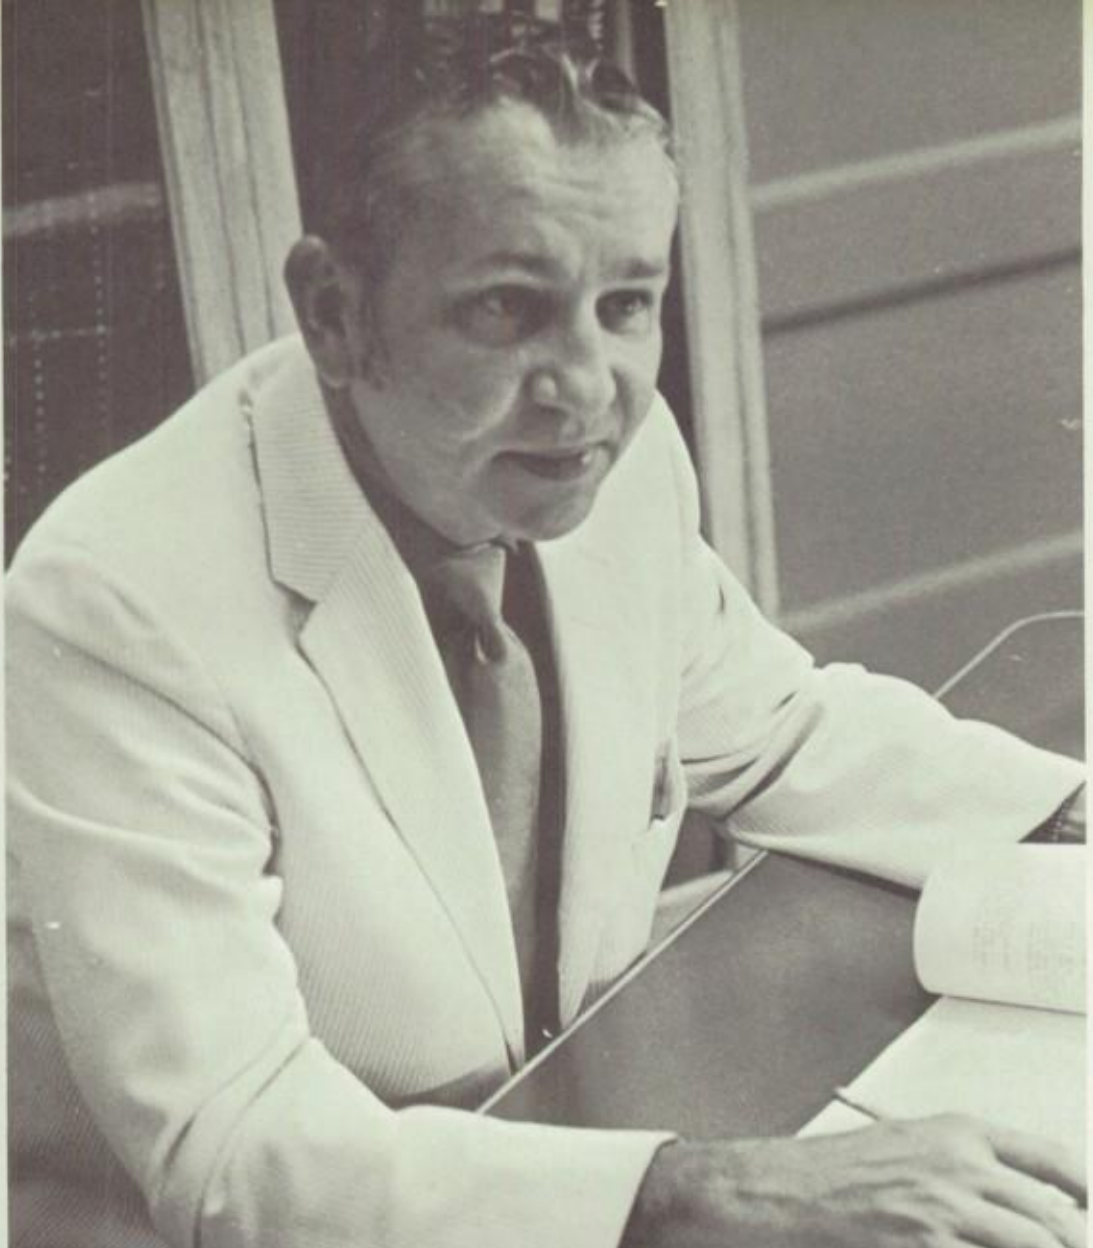
PERSONALITIES

FACULTY

These teachers were people, not Greek gods on pedestals. They did people things — like traveling to the Holy Land, eating lunch in the cafeteria, having flat tires in the parking lot. They reached out and felt their students responding and reaching out, too. "G's guys" and "Mr. Mueller's hip fourth bell" all found concerned friends and after school buddies among faculty members. Both men and women teachers scoffed conventional clothes and appeared in striped minis or checked bells. Some stayed until five to help confused and struggling pupils, while others remained in the building to guide club members through rough times. No Greek god ever worked so hard.

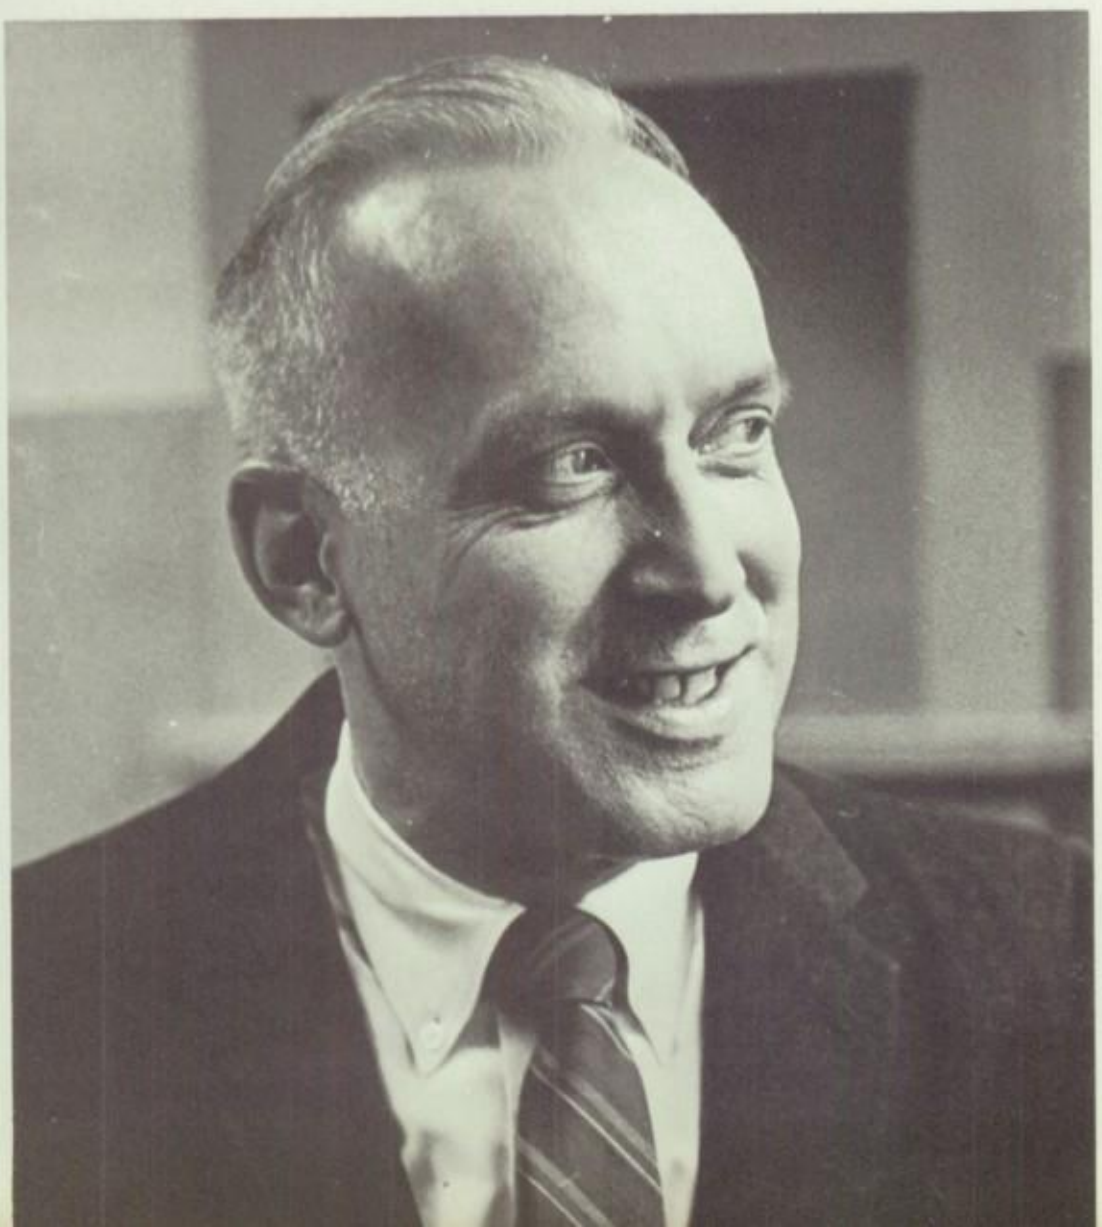
"Faculty Mod Squad": Mr. S. Taylor, Mrs. Martin, Mr. Mueller, Mr. "G", Mrs. Pitstick, Mr. Benns, Mr. Wilson.



Mr. Renshaw Instigates Teacher Curriculum Committee; Mr. McElhaney Returns to Guide Junior High Through Its Last Year

Mr. Marvin R. Renshaw, Principal

Mr. William McElhaney, Junior High Principal



"Situation 'X' is now is effect!" Administrators jumped to life to nab intruders in the building. Besides informing students of these events and other little tragedies of life, Mr. Renshaw organized teacher boards. When it came to community relations, he accentuated the positive and played down the negative. Mr. McElhaney made sure life went on in the junior high. Anything and everything in the line of student activities fell to Mr. Spalter. He OK'd or KO'd all pupil plans throughout the year.

Twelve years of schooling . . . what do we have to show for it? A piece of parchment with names, dates, and congratulations? Much more than that. A lock combination we'll never forget. A closet full of "Sounds" costumes, and some programs from spring concerts. The desk in homeroom with initials etched in ballpoint. A lunchroom chair where we snagged all our clothes. A stack of notes intercepted in study hall, and a pile of old absence notes. A lifetime of buddies you can't find anywhere else. What can we show for these twelve years? Many memories.

Sigma Gamma

Chosen for leadership, scholarship and personality, members of Dux Femina and Sigma Gamma, featured on the following pages, served as Withrow's "Idea People." Dux girls wore jeans with their yellow sweater-vests when the mood suited them. The "men" of Sigma Gamma battled Senior Choir and the band in football. They also reached a tie score of 12-12 with Dux in grid competition.

Judy Hasel

Surprise lunches by the tower gave Judy a needed break from class. In hopes that there might not be time for her project, she canvassed the area for pennies for her new bank. Only a financial crisis, such as club dues or a ruler for annual could make her part with one of her coppers. They could be spared however for a pair of blue jeans or sandals to create the favorite hippish disguise for the "preacher's kid." With the aroma of popcorn still about her from the 3:15 sale, she entered Room 201 to act as vice-president of French Club.

Stalemate of Viet Peace Talks Irritate Students

Jeff Standley

Blasts of the whistle sounded as the swimmer finished the 100-yard breast stroke in 1:14 minutes. Teaching swimming to beginners and attending sessions on water safety at U.C. became his responsibility as Eastwood Pool's life guard. Long walks helped expand his thoughts when baffling advanced placement math problems perplexed him. As Withrow's representative to Shillito's Senior Council, he informed it of Tigertown's activity calendar. After exhausting rehearsals for "Sounds" orchestra, Jeff headed for the bookroom where he could unwind.

Chris Hoehn

Chris's wry grin conveyed an unmistakable message. "This isn't at all gushy, is it?" she asked, glancing up from a newly turned-in copyblock. As Annual Literary Editor for two years, her unpleasant duty was to criticize staff members' work, making them wish that she were still out campaigning for the school tax levy. Her spontaneous wit, however, made her criticisms much easier to take. She herself, though, realized the caustic side of her humor, excusing it good-naturedly with, "It's a good thing that sarcasm isn't fatal."

Cum Laude Claims Twenty in November

Jerry Kassner

Dirty but satisfied, Jerry headed home after another digging session for Campus Beautification. He often became dirty on the job, working at the Sohio station, but Jerry did not mind. On weekends he conditioned his Supersport or played football with friends. When not playing on Sig's football squad, he reviewed A.P. history or pondered over Hamlet's procrastination. Of all courses, the Civil War period in American history appealed to him most. Unclaimed afternoons caught him at Tri-County Speedway, watching the stock car races.

Sharon Massey

Fine brushstrokes and blending colors worked together on Sharon's canvas as she painted landscapes. "SAM" combined artwork with politics while campaigning for friends in school elections. She drew even more posters announcing History Club meetings and the programs she planned as vice-president. Long-range planning emphasized her work as Annual Art editor. Throughout the summer she sorted photographs for the introduction. After measuring copy and presiding over Dux Femina meetings, Sharon accepted invitations to impromptu parties.

Dux Ties Sig in Fierce Grid Competition

Dennis Castor

"Sure, why not?" replied Dennis to his AP math teacher, Miss Graham. Applying his skills learned in math, he planned future stock investments as they were "an easy way to make money without working." After class the varsity end snatched a quick glance at his football trophy before hurrying to the locker room. Following a hard workout from Coach Richard, he relished a big steak dinner and a drive in his yellow Fiat. Between football practices and stock investments, he sold tickets for "Sounds," reflecting his hobby of meeting new people.

Mari Maginn

Rod McKuen vocalized in the background while Mari calculated the yearbook sales. Annual Business staff and the executive board of Student Council collaborated on confiscating more of her time. Modern art gave her a channel to blow her mind. Of modern art, she savored the brush work of Monet and Renoir. Mari sketched while Blind Faith pulsated from her stereo. "It hurts when something isn't permanent, but it's worth it while it's being temporary," reflected her philosophy. Her concept of life plunged into her poetry and short stories.

Lockers Slam for Last Time for Class of 1970

Mike Seibert

Shenanigans in the ticket booth and escapades as a Tower News reporter headed Mike's senior year at Tigertown. As one of the comics in Sigma Gamma and Student Council he kept morale high. "Blondie" relaxed by driving his Maverick around Mt. Washington and reading his favorite comic strip characters, B.C. and The Wizard of Id. He claimed, "Someday I'll be a rich man . . . maybe." As treasurer of Senior Choir and the Senior Class he tackled Advanced Placement math and managed to play basketball and baseball in his spare time.

Victory Climaxes Tiger Homecoming Parade

Chris Hoehn worked under watchful eyes of staff.

History Club's jovial car participated in the parade.

Homecoming Queen Marcia White, congratulated from all sides.

First signs of fall at Hyde Park Square included the Annual Homecoming Parade. Early evening one Friday saw nervous club members and queen candidates tossing crepe paper and masking tape from car to car. Then the procession filed up Erie Avenue, spotlighting the tense smiles of the eight queen candidates and their escorts. Twice around the stadium at school, and the cars took obscure parking places and quickly lost their plumage. Their occupants gleefully watched as the Tigers thrashed Western Hills. Half time brought Drill Team and Band to the foreground for a medley including "Up, Up and Away." Climaxing the evening was Tom Dixon's crowning of Marcia White as queen.

Tower News members cheered Tigers toward victory.

Lisa Koch

Memories from Glenn Lake of sailing, golfing and playing "kick the can," filled Lisa's mind as she prepared her assignment for AP English. Although her English required much concentration, she allotted some time to practice on the piano. Her thoughts, however, strayed to the duties of Latin Club president. Inspired by the literary selection, "The Aeneid," by Vergil, she made plans to major in Latin at college. Involved in college plans for either Miami University or Mt. Holyoke, "Lis" snatched some time over the summer to learn to slalom.

Future Grads Attend College Conferences

Tom Hughes

Corridors echoed with "Howdo!" as Tom greeted his friends on the way to the band room. Practicing piano, tenor sax, and clarinet left little time for the band president to fulfill his responsibilities. As president, too, of Thalian, Tom narrated a speech about Lincoln with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. Munching raw carrots whetted his appetite as he read French dialogues or attempted putt-putt golf. Before rushing off to a Sigma Gamma meeting in his "doo-bug" he disclosed that his philosophy of life was "to laugh all you can while you can."

Joy Hasel

Upside down cake and AP history played key roles in Joy's life. While listening to her collection of Rod McKuen albums, she whipped up all types of yummy pastry or pretzels. During off hours she read Exile, a booklet comprised of poetry and fiction. Her own poem, "People," gained her entry in the literary club Scribblers. The lively production of Comedy of Errors at Playhouse in the Park increased her awareness of the arts. In her own roles with Thalian she preferred "comedy over tragedy," keeping with her optimistic outlook on life.

Dux Popcorn Slows Many Appetites

Dave Shreve

Enormous dogs and contemporary jazz devoured many of Dave's waking hours. "Do whatever makes you happy" illustrated his philosophy. Tennyson and modern drama demanded attention from him. Away from books and into the pool, Dave practiced for meets. Out of school his travels branched from the United States to Canada, where he camped. Two of his desires, to travel and to see more of Canadian scenery and wild life, came true. Outdoor chores made him share in the work of camping. After he mastered the art of canoeing, he shot rapids.

Cum Laude Adopts New System For Spring Tapping

Fall and spring brought a parade of new Cum Laude members. These seniors, selected for their 3.36 averages, felt a tingle of pride when chosen at one of the two tapping assemblies. For them, Cum Laude meant scholarships, college acceptances, honor cords for graduation, and a spring banquet with their parents. The tiny gold pin symbolized the opening of many doors and opportunities.

Martha Jenike

"S-o-u-l, Soul Team, Sock-it-to-me, now," yelled the varsity cheerleader as she rooted the lettermen on to victory. Off the field and into the water, her front crawl and breaststroke splashed Dolphin president to the top in spring swim meets. Famished from a strenuous meet, Martha reclined to the sound of the Rascals and a plate of roast beef. Rollicking in the park with a group of kids characterized Martha's weekends. "Back in the usual grind," Captain of the It's Academic Team, switched on the radio and tackled A.P. math problems.

Graduates Receive Diplomas at Night Commencement

Russell Parker

Experiments with sulfur and ammonia forced Russ to hold his breath, while thoughts of A.P. math problems raced through his mind. When he pondered the mysteries of the world, he turned to the Bible. Unsolved problems led Russell on long walks, which often ended at the golf course. While improving his game, he found time to bask in the outdoors. In the privacy of his own room he listened to classical music, which created the perfect atmosphere for reading. His favorite material ranged from Time magazine to the "Wizard of Id."

Kathy Hopkins

Water skiing at Indiana Beach and going out "stag" started Kathy's summer. As a fan of the rock group, the "Blood, Sweat, and Tears", she relished the thought of eating anything and everything. "Sleepy" began her senior year attending drill team practices and Annual Business Staff meetings. As a member of the Student Council executive board she participated in school spirit drives and candy sales. As the school year drew to a close, she looked forward to attending Kent State University.

Dixon Crowns Queen at Homecoming Bout

Dale Riley

Half time shows at football games always placed the "dancing drum major" up front. In order to lead the band, Dale went to a four day camp, learning how to whistle, direct, and march. After football season ended, he returned to his trombone in the pep band at basketball games and orchestra in "Sounds". Besides playing in band, he collected money for Campus Beautification Committee. His help on the R.F.K. memorial gave other Tigers a peaceful place to sit at lunch. After contributing to the compus, Dale savored his free time being a painter.

Valerie Foster

Choir's president restored quiet with a good-natured call for order. In addition to this duty, Valerie typed the minutes for the Senior Class meetings before dashing off to a basketball game. Because she considered basketball too tiring, though, Valerie discovered long walks in the park more relaxing. Lessons in diving supplemented her swimming ability. Cooking also proved a fascinating pastime, although she refused to eat any of her own creations. She fared better in the field of mathematics, however, and planned to teach it in high school.

AFS's Anne Wyke Attends Tigertown

Bob Miller

Spectators in Withrow's grandstand usually spied Robert rooting for the home team. Muni "E" team, a summer league, channeled his sporting temper into a second-base fielding position. During that time he earned the nickname "The Butcher." Besides playing baseball, he displayed talents for angling. Vacations at Lake Burnside gave him a chance to get in a bit of fishing. Living the rough life of a camper near Cumberland Falls filled Bob with a deeper appreciation for wildlife and nature. Between fishing trips he juggled trays at Jimbll's.

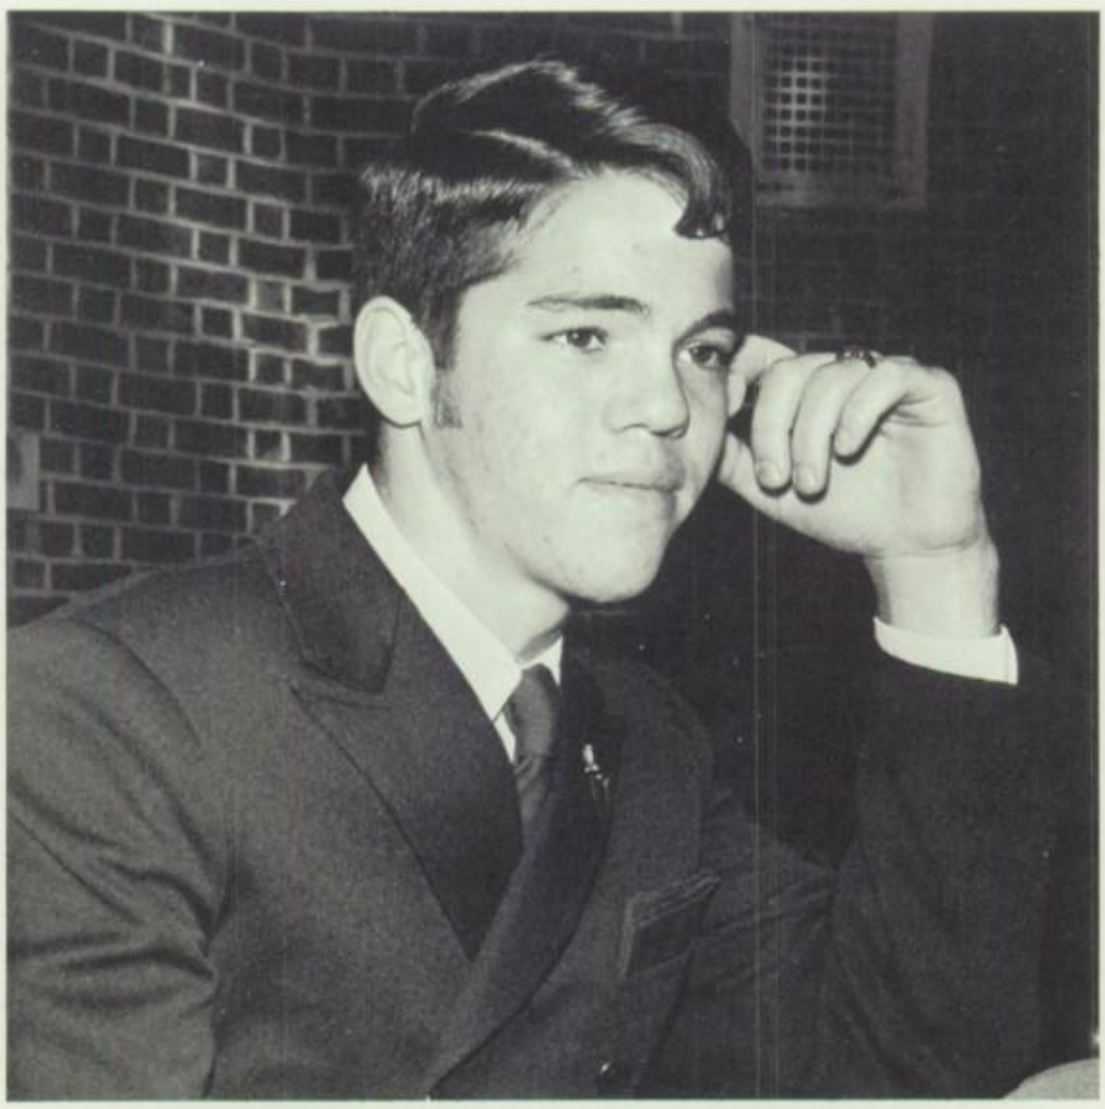
Legs whirled around the stage in quick kicks, hops, and flaps, as "Sounds" pony Gail clicked her heels along with the line. When not dancing or managing the business branch of Tower News, she tossed her hat into a whirlwind of projects. "Gilbert" worked as a salesgirl at Shillito's if not diving headlong into Dolphin meets. Indiana Beach afforded many chances for swimming and water skiing as well as for making new friends. She often continued these friendships through correspondence. By writing, she carried home part of the summer fun.

Vote 19 Fires Spirit of Progressive Teens

Tony Fazzio

"Who's better?" "Italy!" cried Tony as he remembered the friendly fights with the guys. "Italian Power" and "Italy is Number One!" covered Dago's notebook — a familiar sight under his first clarinet chair. Aside from band, Tony presided at Sigma Gamma meetings. Plans to beat the band and choir at football overcame disappointment for no Tigertown Twirl. Practice for the football games took time, but Tony's preparations for entering college became a major event. After graduation he planned on attending the University of Cincinnati.



Janice Jones

Heavenly tones of hymns vibrated from the choir where Janice's hours slipped away on Fridays. She completed her evenings as a volunteer to display Sawyer Junior High to new seventh graders. English rated number one among her various subjects. In her spare moments she obtained pleasure in reading. Usage of GAA's tricks and athletics never ended as she applied them to Drill Team. Although she only served in the Children's Hospital coffee shop, the closeness with young patients rewarded her with a wish to teach pediatric nursing.

Class Officers Initiate New Pep Club

Titus Besley

Strangers to Withrow found a friendly smile in Titus Besley. He broke up Senior Choir's baritone section between octaves with his "joke of the day". In the spring, he practiced for Choir's production number in Sounds. He planted crocus bulbs and set broken arms on statues for Campus Beautification Committee. Frequent workouts in the gym kept Titus in the Tiger wrestling team's 165 weight class. Titus tried his hand at poetry after reading John Steinbeck's The Pearl. Sporting a mustache, he ushered at the Parent's Night open house.

Bursts of applause rang through the auditorium as a shining face accepted her Cum Laude pin. Ranking in the top twenty of her class, she supplemented her academic studies with Madrigal and Drill Team. Co-captain of Drill Team highstepped her way into vacation fun, which included camping in Houston Woods and sailing her own canoe "Tippy." Summer days revealed Sue with her Girl Scout troop on a schooner bound for the Long Island Sound. Discussions with her friends on philosophies of life inspired her to remark to simply "be yourself."

It's Up, Up, and Away to College

Terry Thomas

"Sounds" rehearsals for Thalian and choir kept "Teddy Bear" busy. Afterwards, he listened to classical music by Chopin. Terry often daydreamed, while music filled the air around him, about "things I'd rather be doing." Girls, his mood, and weather furnished background for his dreaming. Often he imagined himself coaching or playing a professional sport, one of his ambitions. Other times Terry drifted back to the "good old days at Withrow" when he felt most students' activities centered on their school. College headed his plans after graduation.

Sally Mullins

Popsicle in hand, the GAA president slurped diligently as she delved into a mystery by Mary Stewart. Swinging on uneven parallel bars and vaulting horses topped Sally's day. Flanked by funny people, the apple salesman scurried from hockey field to swimming pool to skating rink and back again. After devouring a plate of shrimp, she relaxed to musical sounds ranging from Oliver to electrified Jimi Hendrix. Gulped meals and scribbled homework characterized Monday and Wednesday as Sally scrambled to get to her swim-instructor course at U.C.

Water Break in November Closes School Doors

Steve Gentry

Experience in Junior Achievement's bank trained Steve in the handling of money. Ticketbooth members valued knowledge when the financial problems of selling tickets arose. Money matters, however, never impressed him as much as history. Numerous visits to History Club advanced his desire to become a social studies teacher. His academic subjects assisted him with the vice-presidency of Senior Class. He fulfilled his leisure from his studies by reading. Literature proved worthwhile when Dickens' Tale of Two Cities expressed nowdays to him.

Ellen Hodge

Western-flavored folk songs taught by a Spanish-American friend gave Ellen a musical insight of America. Westminster Choir College set the scene for another musical experience during a summer music course. Creative writing served as a second means of expression. Ellen believed that she wrote best on the subjects she had definite emotions about. She thought that "more girls should take advantage of their talents and not be afraid to compete with men." During the football season she sorted band uniforms as a "Bandaid."

Club Leaders Meet for Council of Presidents

Dan Thee

Fore! Dan teed off his sophomore year as a transfer from Norwood High. Constantly on the green, Dan specialized in long drives and curvy putts. After golfing he relaxed at home working on various building projects. In a basement workshop he connected a tape deck and an AM-FM radio to his stereo. With this combination of equipment, he collected several kinds of music, since no one style classified his taste. Tiger band music, though, did draw Dan to Friday night football games to watch the majorettes.

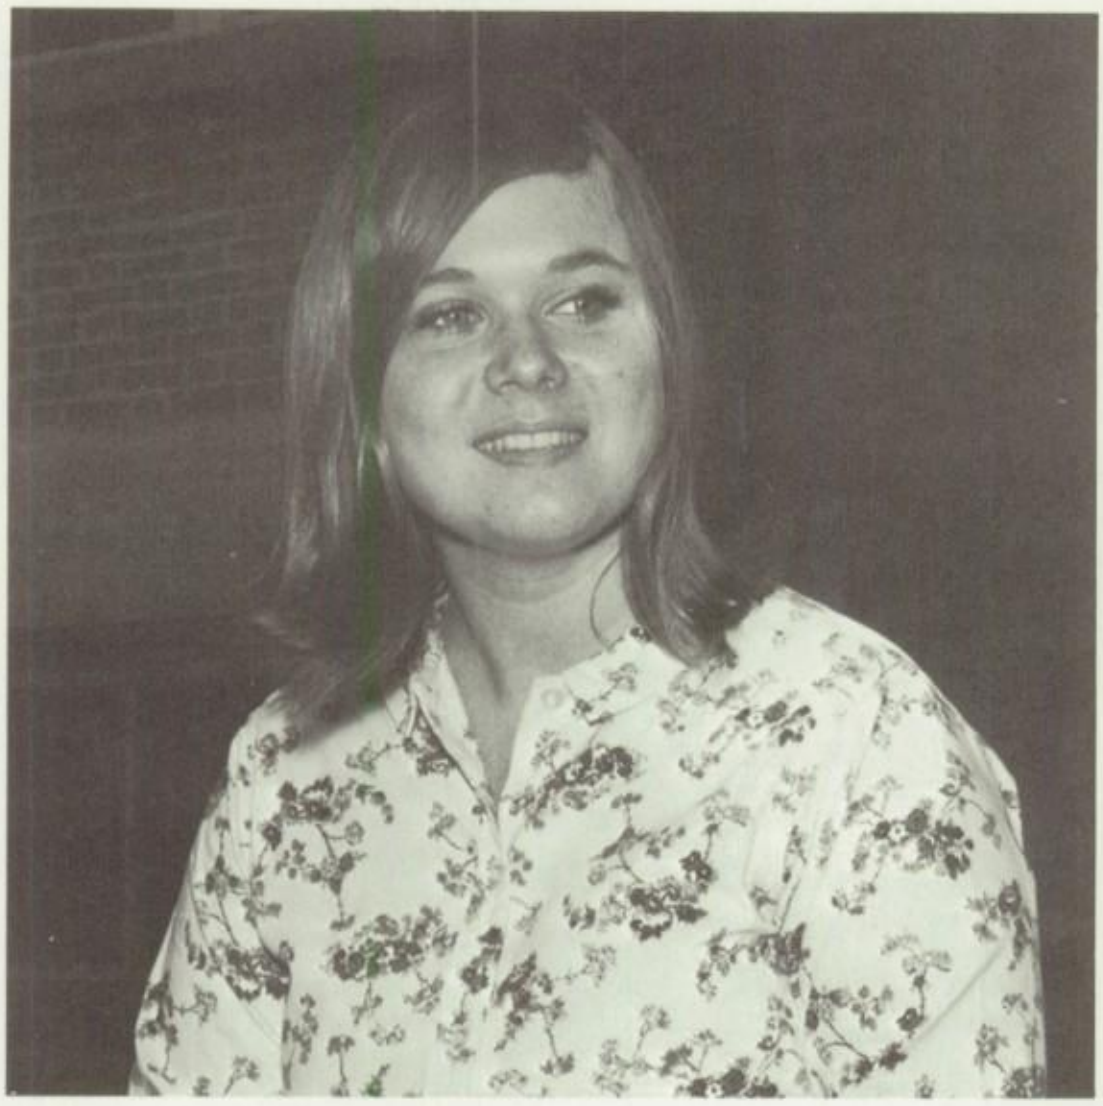
February Elections Reveal 1970 T.N. Popularity Poll

Murmurs of "Who should I vote for?" spread throughout the school as students voted for the most outstanding twelfth graders in the traditional senior popularity poll. Only upperclassmen voted, electing friends to such areas "Most Likely to Succeed," "Brainiest", and "Best All Around." Tower News' representatives scurried to various senior homerooms, delivering and collecting the ballots. Surprised winners learned the results in the February edition of Tower News.

Best All-Around: Mari Maginn and Willie Williams

Best School Citizens: Sue Steffens and John Sleet



Kathi Suffridge

Bustling crowds. Jammed hallways. Everything suggesting the depressed joy of school. But to Kathi, "That's life." For her it has meant playing Mrs. Krebbs in "Inherit the Wind" or having worked a full day in Governor Rhodes' office. Strangely quiet, she obeyed the rules and kept mainly to herself. Waterfalls, trees and sunlight. DUX, Cum Laude, and History Club. Some resemblance? Even time to be art editor of "Scribbles!" As for the future? Who can tell, but she? Something exuberant and bright! Yes, this was the impression she left us. . .

Graduation Hour Nears for Six Hundred

Tom Dixon

Calm settled on the lunchroom as Tom called the Senior class meeting to order. It was another morning for Miss Moormann to ask homeroom "Does Tom have a meeting?" If it were not Senior Class, it would be Council of Presidents. His homeroom hardly knew him. Tom rarely had to encounter this problem though. He was a recognizable figure about Withrow, however varied in expression. The look of Tom Dixon coming from the choir was unlike the perturbed reflections of the same in AP math, but these became one as a grinning scholar was tapped for Cum Laude.

Babette Stallworth

"Say, are you the one giving the tower tours?" Babette often heard the question, referring to her job as guide for Campus Beautification Committee. A tour of her private life revealed her "green thumb." Although living things numbered among her concerns, AP history influenced her idea that the Reformation Period offered the most challenge. Sunshine from the warm Gulf Coast welcomed Babette one summer as did the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the nations capitol. Ascending the Washington Monument gave her new respect for foot power.

Spring Banquet Honors Cum Laude Graduates

Alan Tewksbury

"Blood, Sweat, and Tears," a pop group, captured Tewks' support during his excursion to San Francisco. Leaving the mod world behind, he toured Canada and discovered the "friendly" faces of Montreal. Back on home grounds, Al tampered with the engine of his '66 Karmen Ghia. Although he relished moments in his sports car, Alan made room for taping pop stars, like Jimi Hendrix, on his stereo. Combining pleasure with his school work, he listened to "You've Made Me So Very Happy" while working on AP calculus equations.

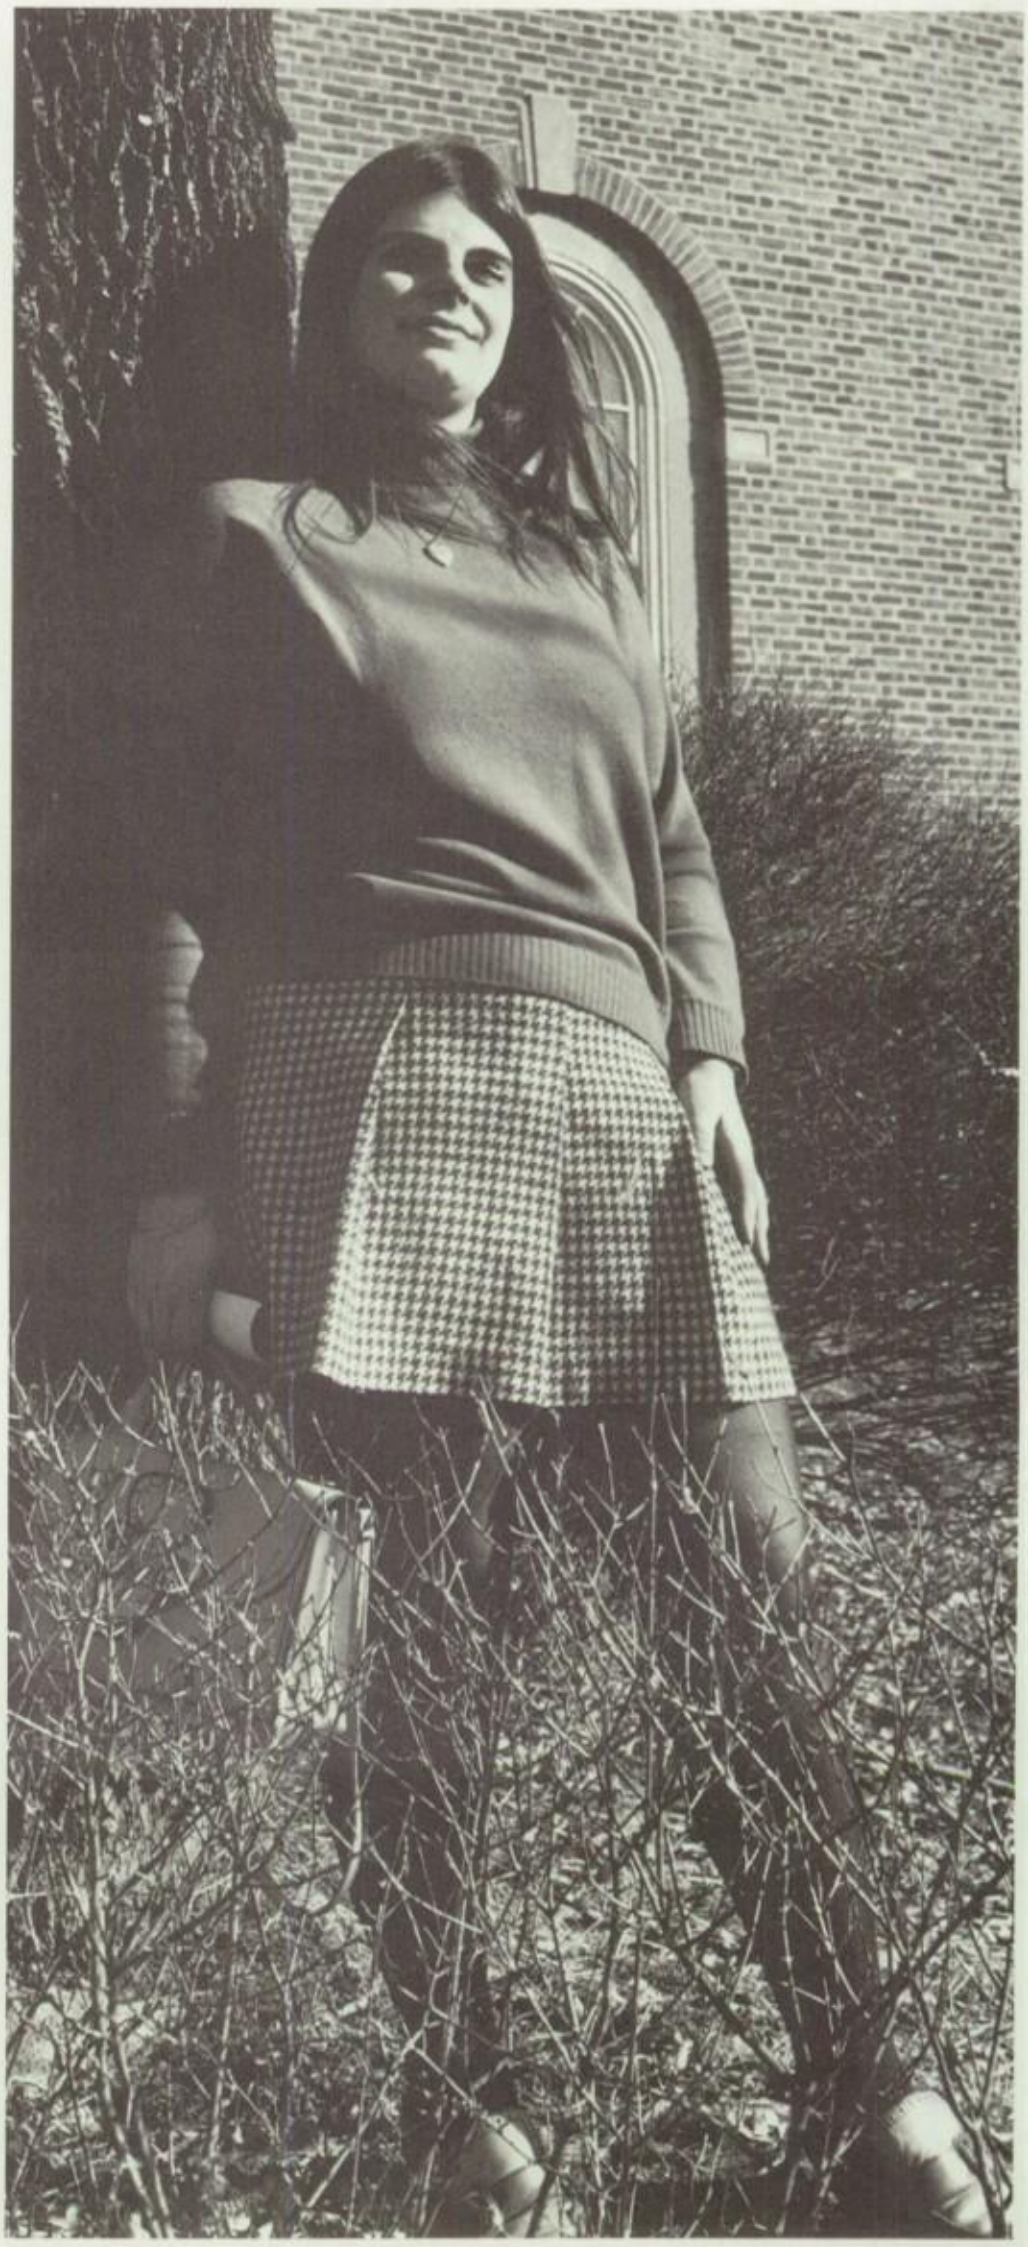
Thanksgiving Assembly Presents Andy Wyke, New Field Service Student From England

°Life — it is an immense gift
— God given
A gift?
— a challenge I think;
One to find
— adventure
— happiness
— knowledge
— hope for the future
And it is a challenge
I grasp with both hands
To explore to the limit.
My experiences,
I summon to help me
find, understand and value.
Not only myself,
but you, and her, and him.

Anne Rosalinde Wyke

Anne and her American sister, Lisa Koch.



Anne Rosalinde Wyke, England

Graduating Seniors Leave Behind Memories And Achievements . . .

Lisa Lawson

I am a passionate person — a lover of life,
Princess of Procrastinators
and a listener of the heart — the heart can never be wrong — so forward, forward — I shall go on listening and walking
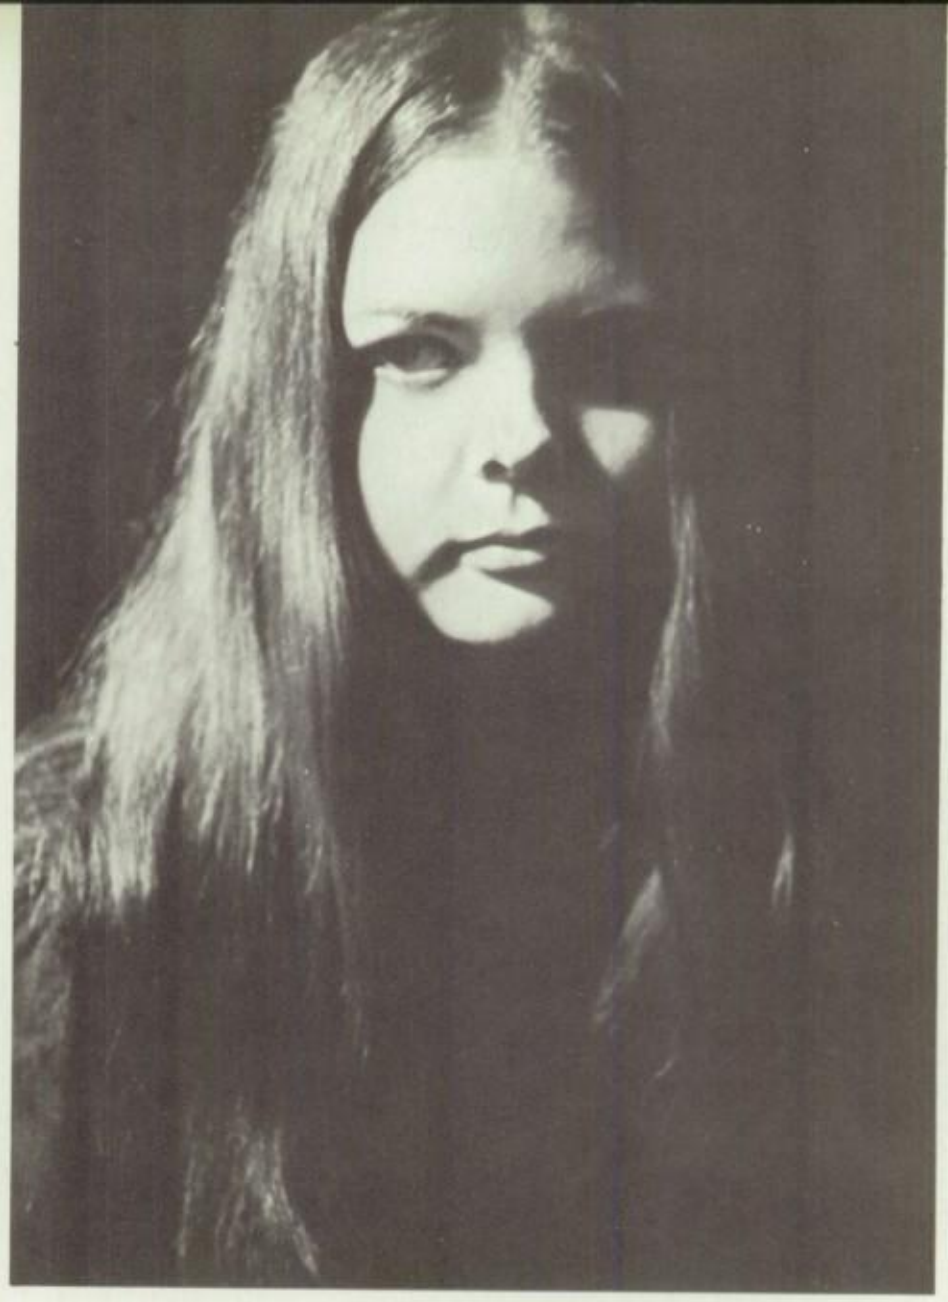
under every ladder
I see—



Hugh Cox

I am a person who is easy to get along with.
I get very happy,
like to walk,
run and can't quit
talking or smiling.
In fact,
I get so happy at times I can't even sleep at night.
Sometimes
I see strange things. When people are interested in these strange things
I see and will talk with me about them, I may let them see these things.

Last Reflections by the Class of Withrow 70

Toni Turner

As a black girl,
I reached a point, that made me aware of the smaller
part of my life.
The desire to belong. . .
the urge to be a part of. . .
the longing to be alone
when I faced hurt. . .
the rejection. . .
This is the way I felt.
It's such a little thing to weep. . .
but the pain. . .
the anxiety and the disappointment I felt. . .
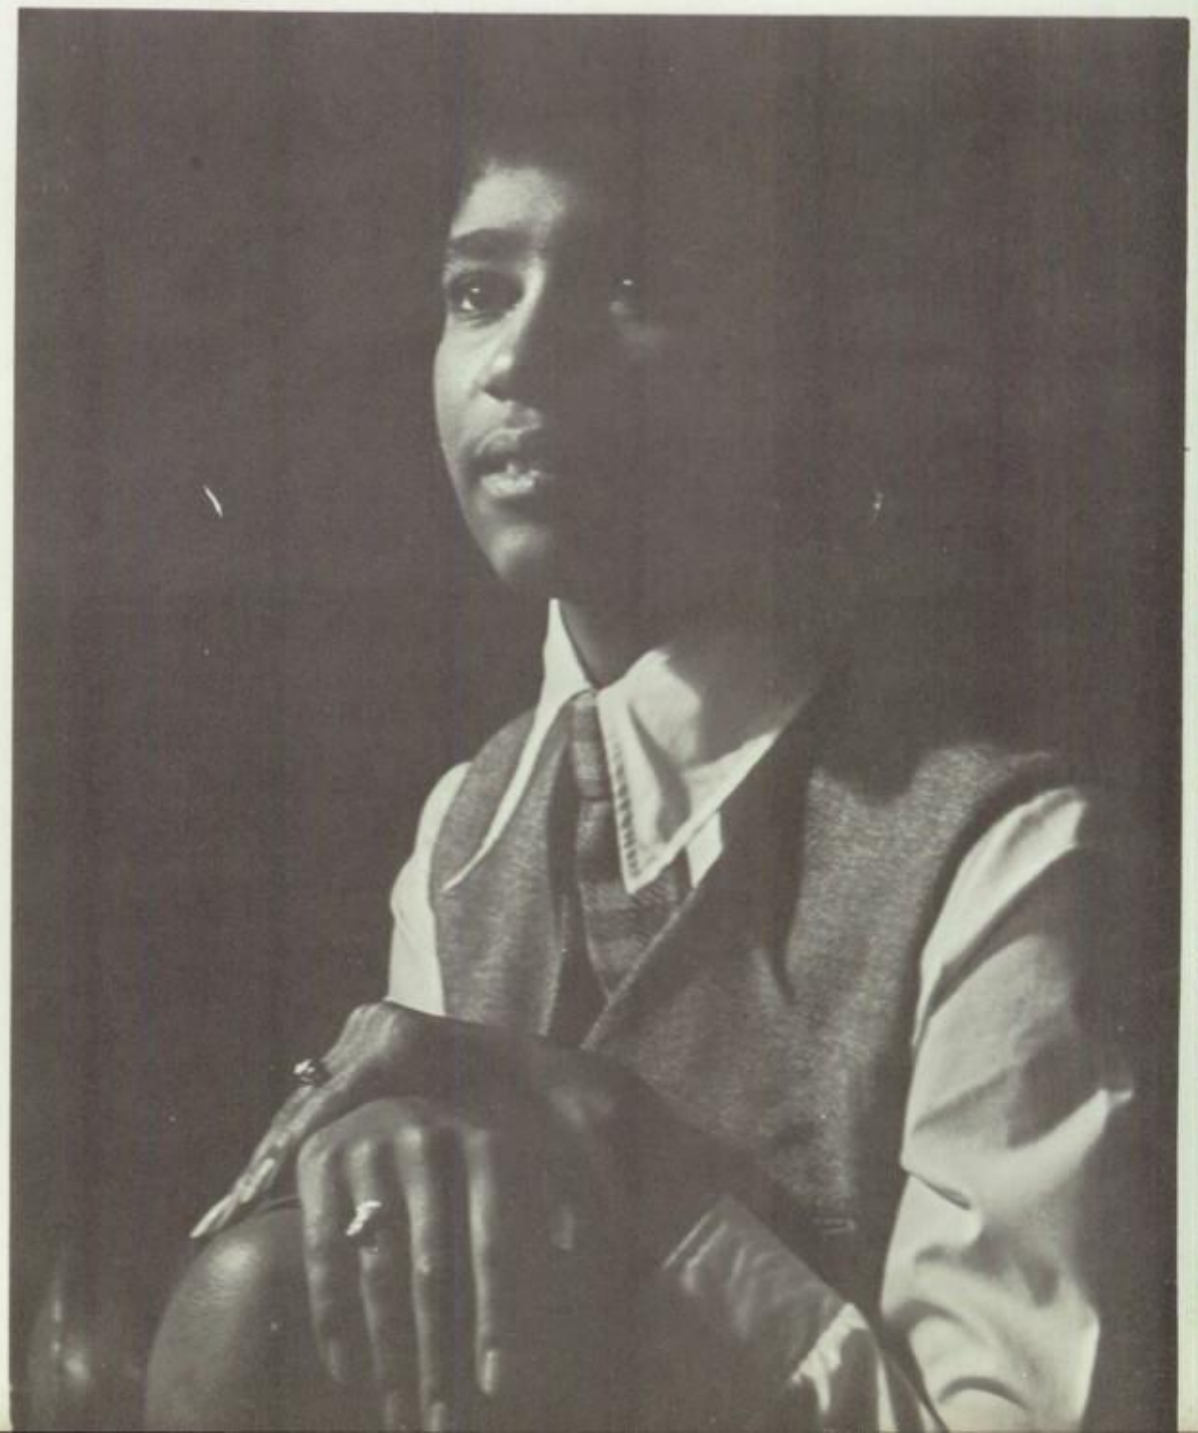
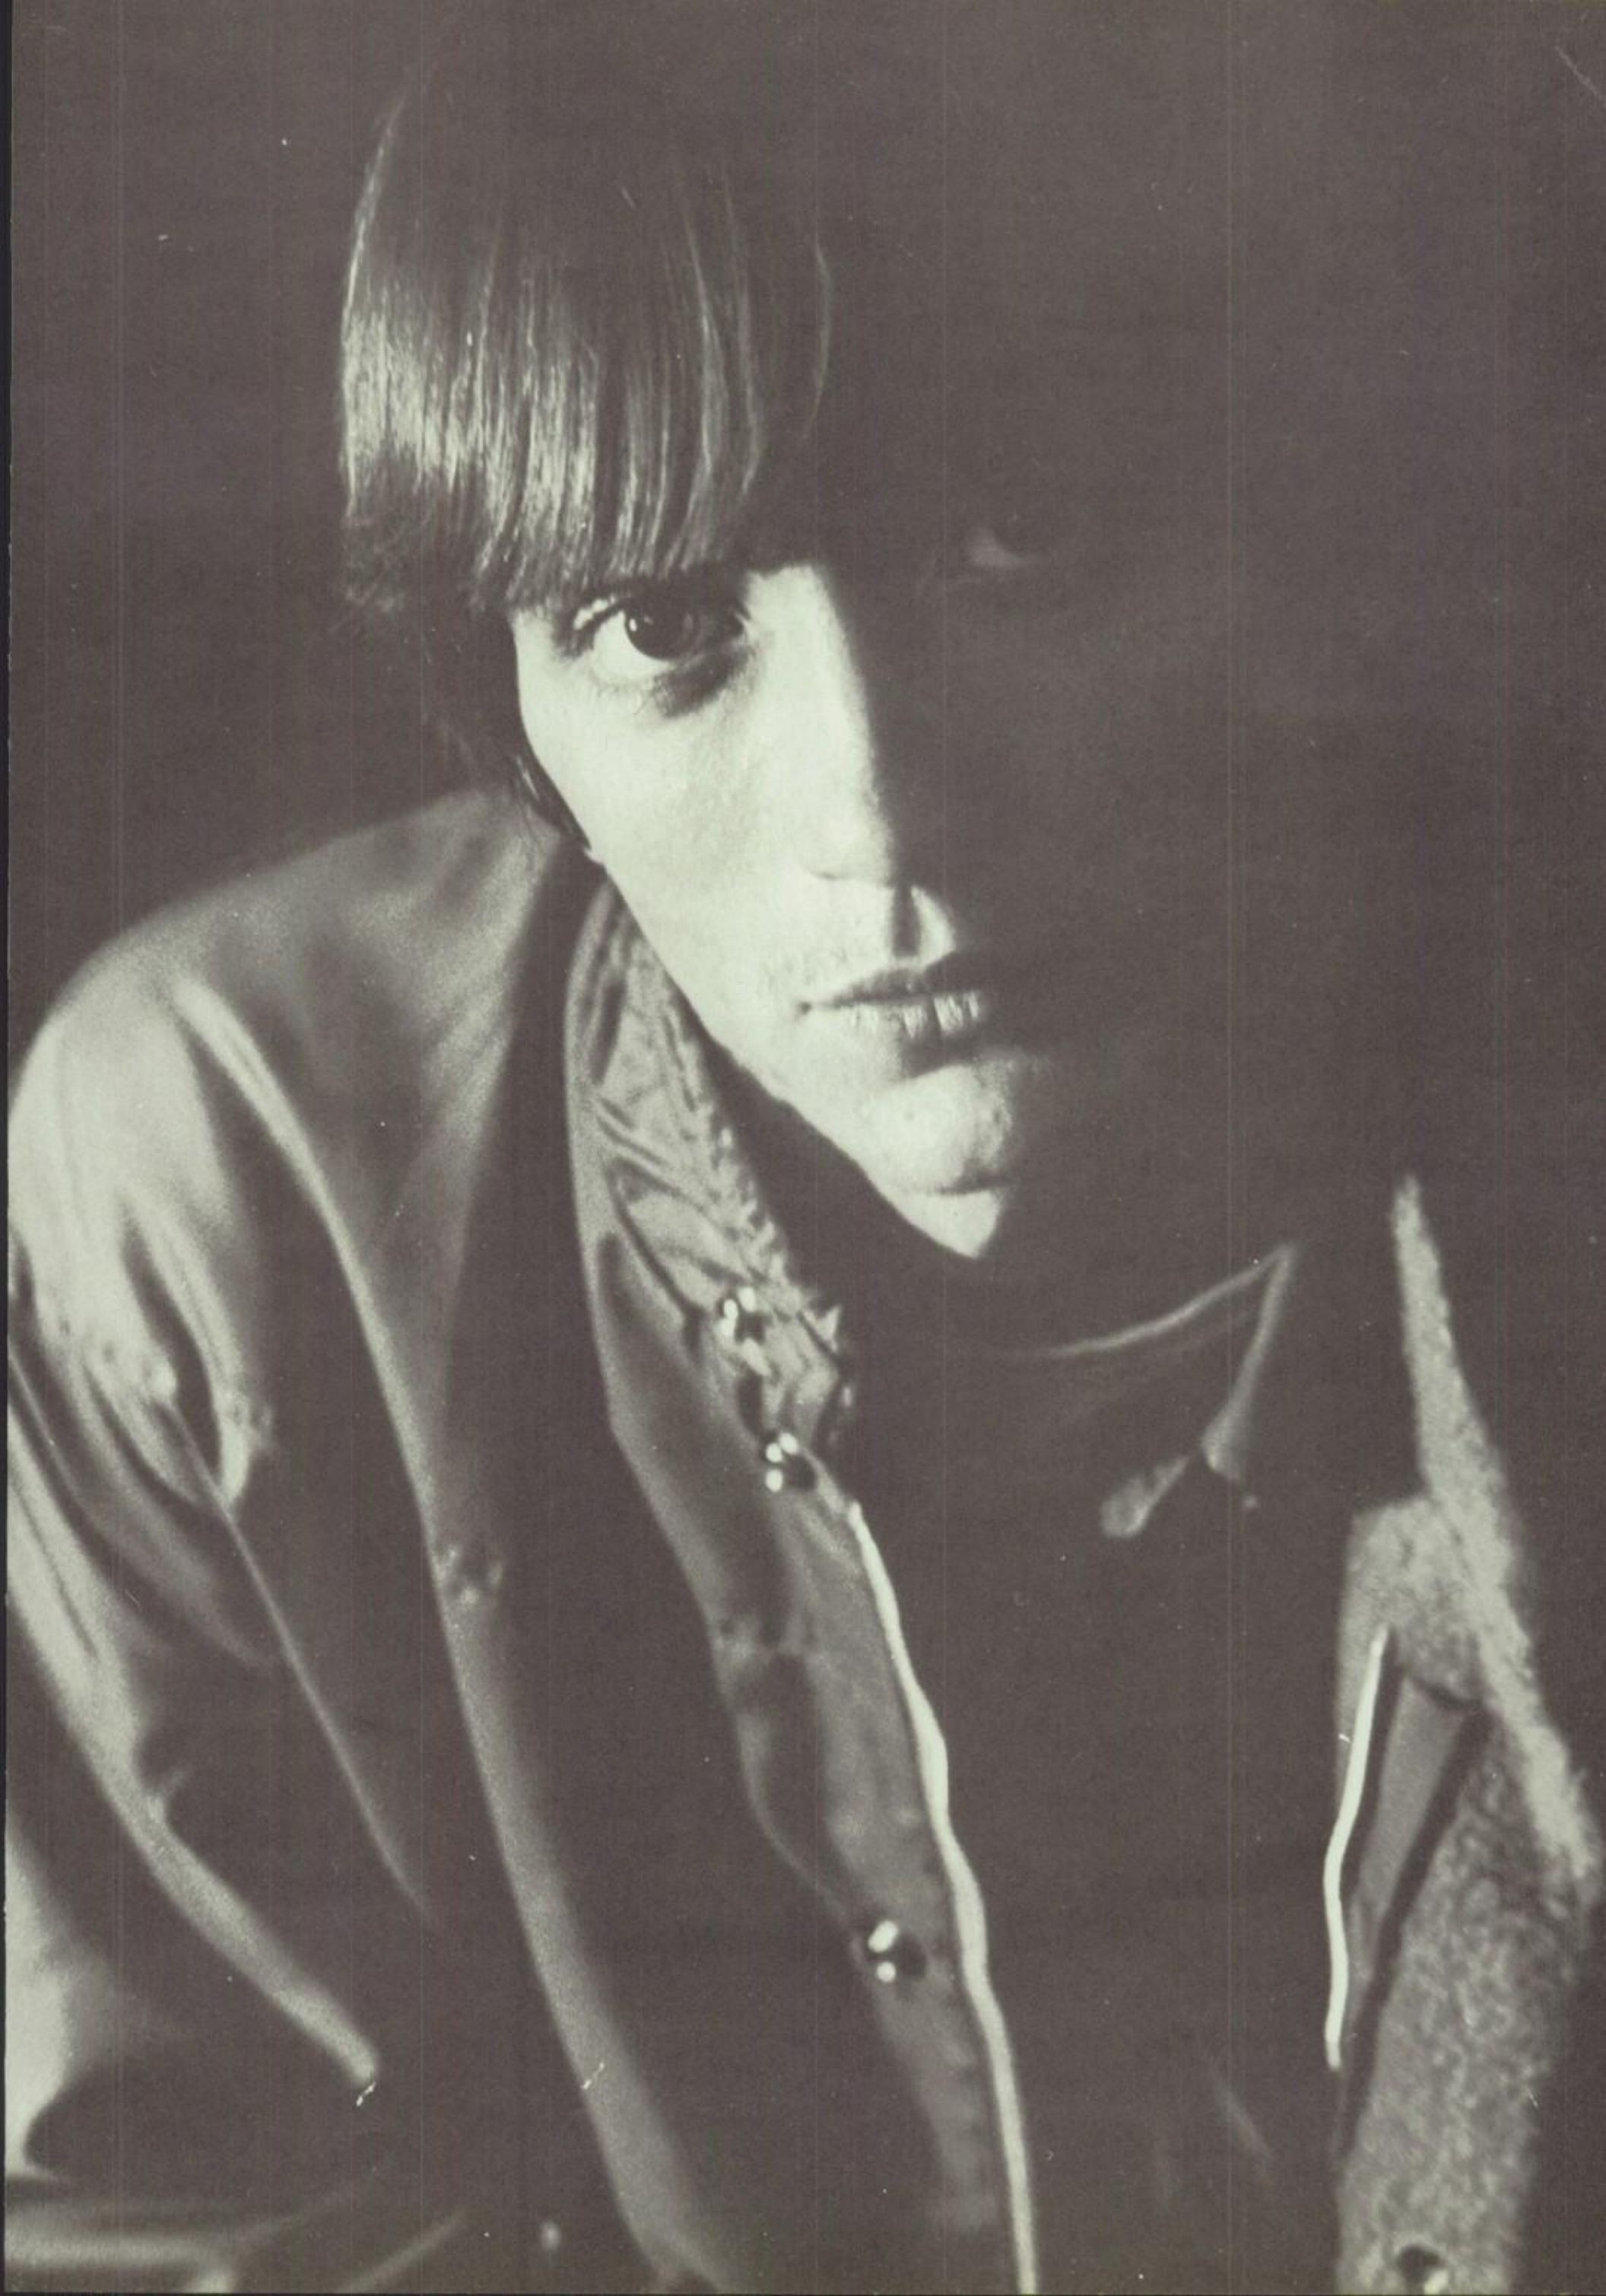
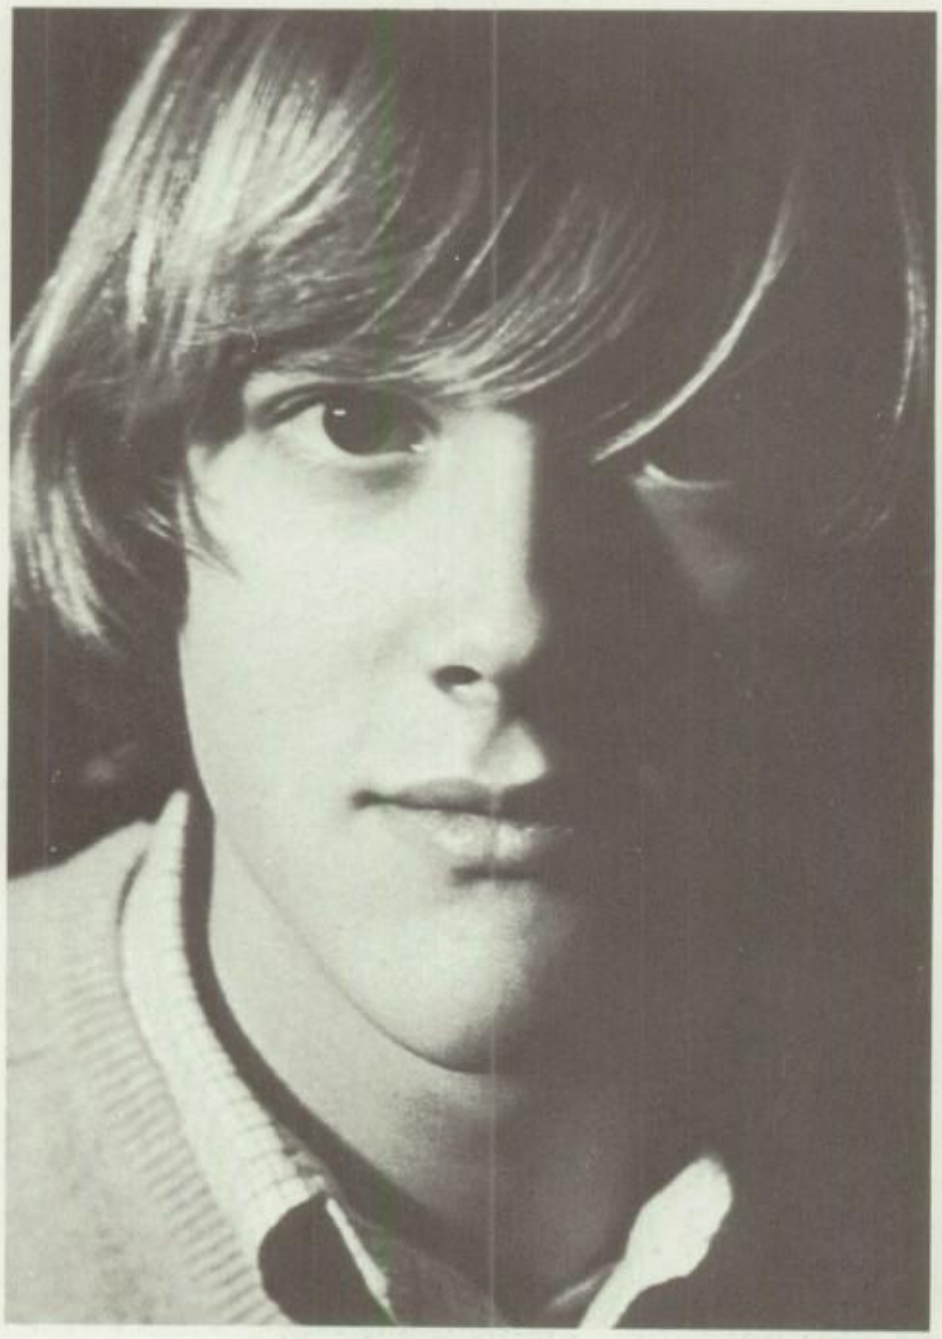
are only the smaller
part of my life
that seems so huge to me now.







David Bohmer

What feelings should one have for his many frustrations? It seems that these miseries
are life's gift to man.
To have very few enjoyable moments is the gift,
and with each enjoyable
time we have,
it comes to pass and becomes memory. I may sound like an old man
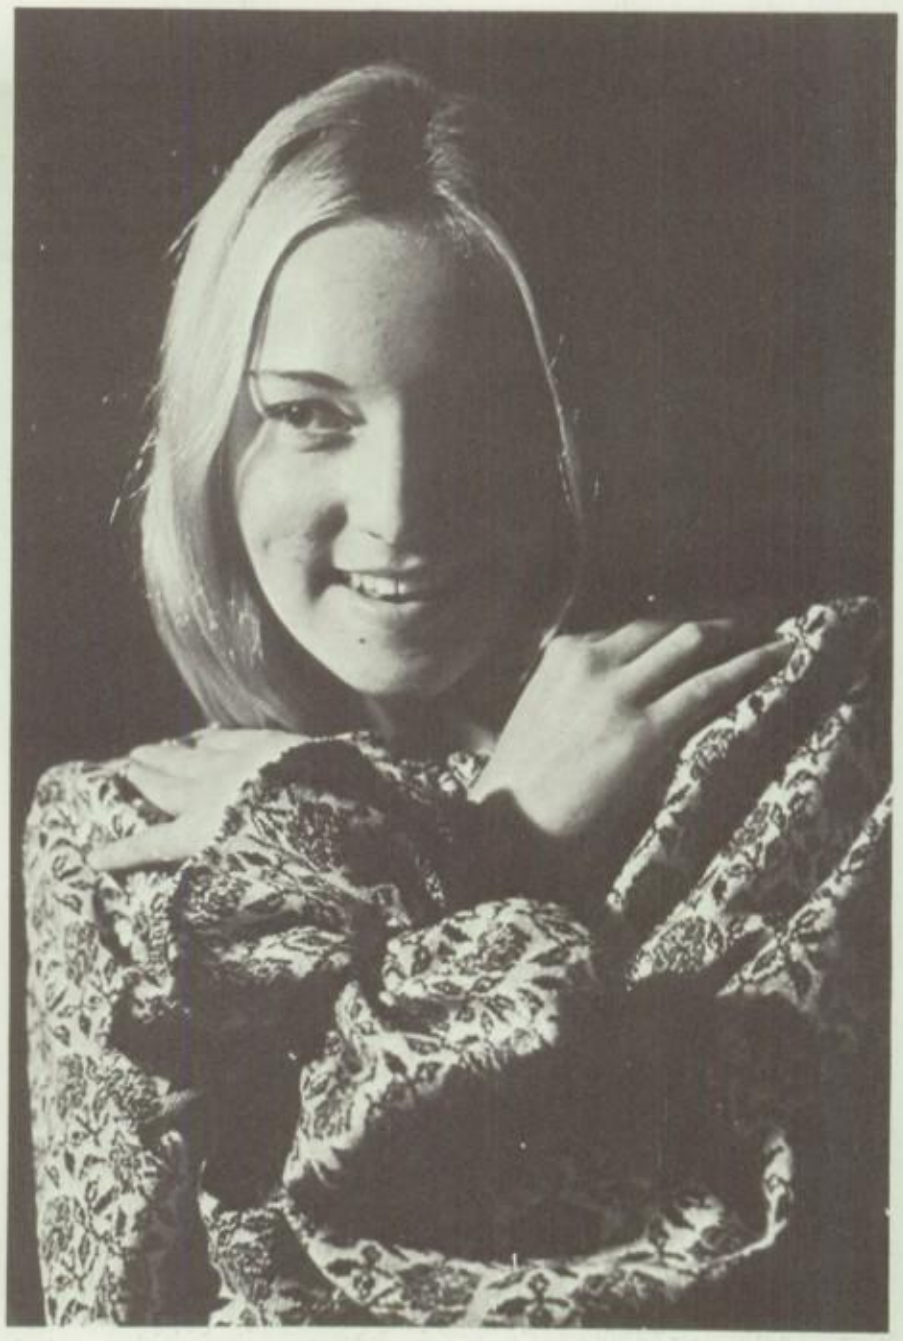
looking back on his youth,
but sometimes I live
there to pass
my shortcomings.
Is it worth it?



Kimberly Haught

I'd love to move through life
With flowers on my head
Hoping they'd never wilt.
Time, simple time
Changes me so Everyday.
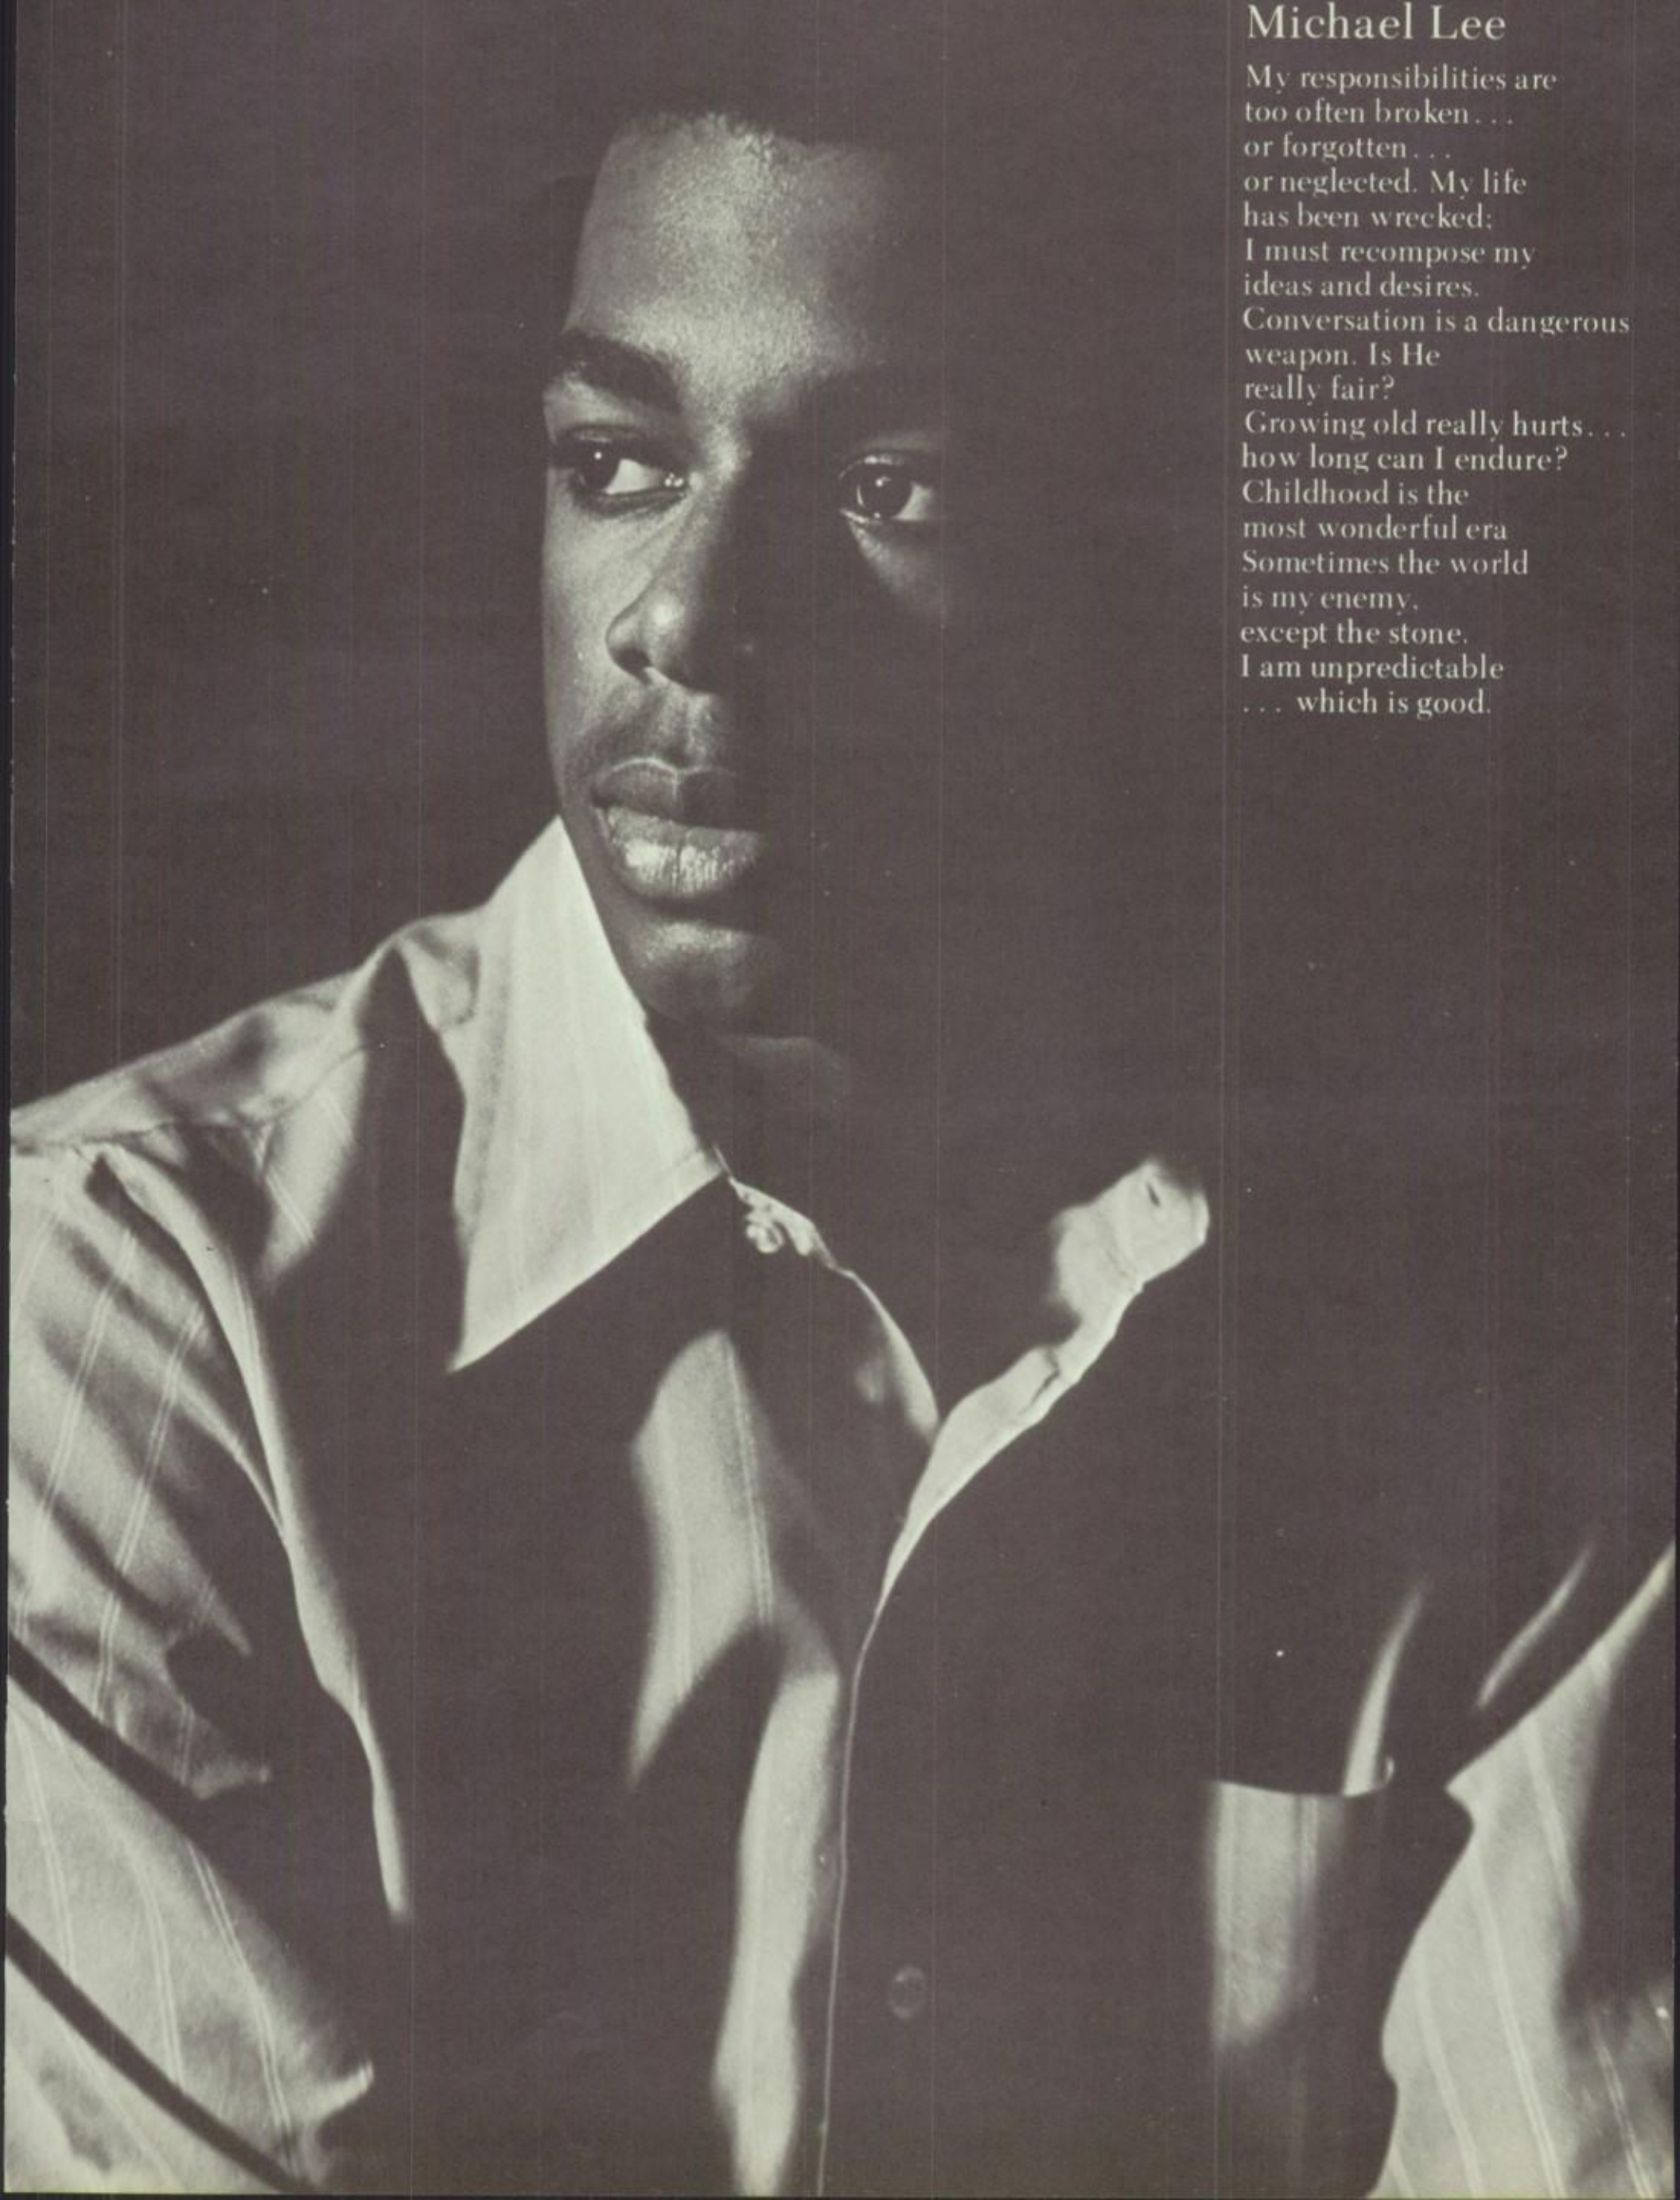
Someday . . . soon . . . very soon
I wish
To gather my dreams
And let them take wing with me.
Security, the greatly sought
Will I try finding
In ground, grass, and water.
Blessed God
Grant me peace of mind
For perfect children
Shine within themselves.



Michael Lee

My responsibilities are too often broken . . .
or forgotten . . .
or neglected. My life
has been wrecked;
I must recompose my ideas and desires.
Conversation is a dangerous weapon. Is He really fair?
Growing old really hurts . . .
how long can I endure?
Childhood is the most wonderful era
Sometimes the world
is my enemy,
except the stone.
I am unpredictable
. . . which is good.

JUNIORS

Anyone could tell you that there was more to being a junior than groveling before upperclassmen. Challenge came with AP American History, introduced this year by Mr. Weis. Besides cluttering their minds with historical facts, pupils had a chance to test their knowledge of English and math on the PSAT. Not always concerned with study, eleventh graders turned their thoughts to money making projects, such as selling T-shirts and sweatshirts. The money went into Prom Fund. With the sale of rings, students waited in line to have their fingers measured and to pay deposits. At the year's close, juniors looked to becoming upperclassmen by electing Senior Class officers.

SOPHOMORES

War raged between tenth graders and those mechanical monsters of the lunchroom. Every once in a while an ice cream machine would give birth to a cheese sandwich. Away from the lunchroom this enormous school posed many problems for the new students. Election of class officers replaced some of the boredom of homeroom. Newly elected officers aided Greg Williams in his role as Sophomore president. This was a new experience to underclassmen coming here for the first time. Sometimes, however, tenth graders became confused by the numbering of classrooms. Often a sophomore would be lost, wandering around aimlessly. Soon, however, tenth graders did master the routine here at Tiger Town.

FRESHMEN

Feelings of superiority permeated the halls as the freshmen bid their final year to junior high. During preparation for their new experiences in the senior high, ninth-graders assumed leadership in the organization of the new junior high to be opened in the fall of 1970. Amid their responsibilities the boys relieved tension through vigorous workouts with the reserve team while the cheerleaders rooted the boys on to victory. During school hours, students enrolled in new freshman courses such as geometry and biology. As final exams marked the end of their year, students anxiously anticipated fall and their move to the senior high school building.

Pensive looks through the window revealed narrow junior high hallways.

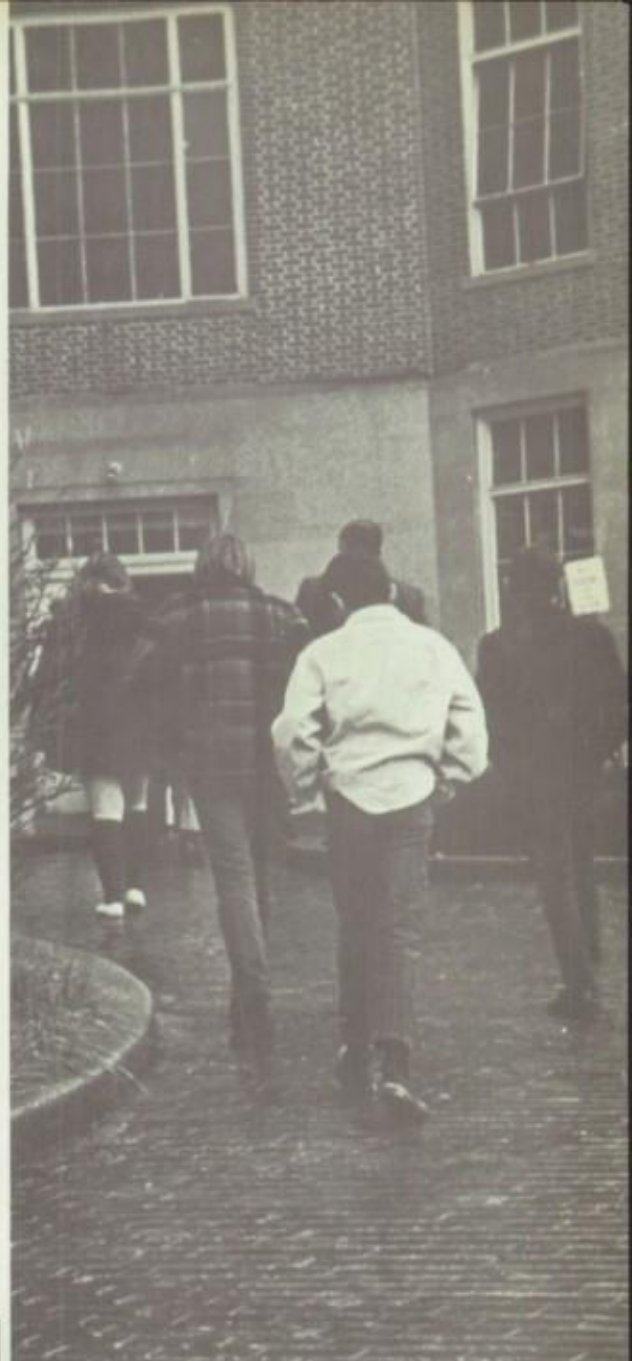
EIGHTH GRADE

"I'm so glad I'm not the youngest kid at school anymore." "Look at that kid. He's lost just like you were last year." "You go up these steps then turn right. It's the first door on the left." Instead of asking questions, this year eighth graders gave the directions. School seemed less frightening and not as hard for these experienced Withrowites. Time now was not spent starting anew in clubs or traditions. They were already reading requests from the Student Council suggestion box, singing for a Christmas assembly in Jr. Choir, and twirling as majorettes, When spring came eighth graders made Student Council election posters, getting ready to be next year's leaders.



Starting off a second year at Withrow meant knowing the way to class and seeing old friends.

SEVENTH GRADE

I'm twelve and in the seventh grade.
Girls carry purses in the seventh grade all the time.
Did you see that guy? He's president of Student Council.
His physics class is next to my math class.
If we run, maybe we'll see him at the drinking fountain.
Right to the first number, left to zero,
And on to the second, right to the third.
And it opens.
Of course, I remember my combination.
It's the directions, I don't understand.
I had a lot of fun when I was eleven.

New students found that learning the ropes could be dangerous.

IT'S OUR TURN TO CHEER!

We proudly salute the over 1690 students (and, of course, their enthusiastic classmates, teachers and advisors) who have competed, since 1963, in CG&E's exciting TV quiz IT'S ACADEMIC!

In participating they have won for their school libraries more than 19,000 volumes of reference books.

We're delighted to recognize and encourage the academic achievements of our area's high school students. And we look forward to continuing to do so.

The Business Department for the management of technical affairs . . .

Mrs. Corry, the school treasurer, for her help with the finances . . .

The advisers for their guidance . . .

The students for their support . . .

Withrow High School for the memorable year which we have attempted to reflect in

WITHROW 70

The editors: Art — Sharon Massey
Business — Mari Maginn
Literary — Chris Hoehn

This is it . . .
the beautiful year . . . the year when the hours flew, the days passed . . . Until now, when we say farewell to
